

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

RICHARD TAYLOR, PRINTER,
SHOE-LANE.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORD MAYOR, ALDERMEN, AND COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF LONDON.

THIS Volume presents to your notice an early Chronicle of the great Metropolis over which you preside.

The rising taste for literature, and particularly that part of it relating to the History of your ancient City, which has lately been evinced by you in the formation of a Library, as well as in the private Collections made by several of your members on the same subject, renders it probable that the publication of this Chronicle, which has never before been printed, may not be deemed unacceptable.

Amongst the “ Illustrations ” will be found some interesting and important documents taken from the Archives of your

Corporation;—they give a faint idea of the valuable historical information contained in your Records ; and it may be hoped that these specimens will induce you to follow the example set by the Great Council of the Nation in printing the Parliamentary Records, and that at no very distant period measures may be taken for the publication of such of the documents in your possession as will illustrate the History of England, and of the City of London.

London, February 1827.

THE present period is so distinguished for historical research, that the publication of an English Chronicle, written in the fifteenth century, will not it is presumed require any other prefatory remarks to recommend it to attention, than a brief account of the MSS. from which it has been transcribed. Two copies are extant in the British Museum ; the one in the Harleian MS. 565, the other in the Cottonian MS. Julius B. 1. and the material variations between them are either alluded to, or inserted in the Notes. The copy in the Harleian MS. ends with the 22nd year of the reign of Henry the Sixth, Anno 1442, about which time the volume was evidently written : but the other transcript, which is in a much later hand, is continued to the death of Edward the Fourth, Anno 1483, though after the accession of that monarch the narrative is barren and unsatisfactory. It may therefore be inferred that the original compiler did not survive the death of Henry the Sixth, and that the continuation was by another person. With the events of that period the writer is consequently to be deemed contemporary ; and all which he relates of the reigns of Henry the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth, are peculiarly deserving of notice ; for some curious facts are mentioned, many of which have never,

it is believed, been so fully detailed, even if they were previously known ; whilst of earlier times his statements are as worthy of credit as those of other Chroniclers who did not live in the ages of which they respectively treat.

This volume is called "A CHRONICLE OF LONDON" in the title-page, from the author having so particularly confined himself to the Metropolis ; and still more, because he has, like his successor Fabian, commenced each year with the election of the Lord Mayors and Sheriffs of London, whose names are uniformly recorded, but unfortunately no clue exists by which the name of the writer can be ascertained.

To the history of England however, no less than to that of London, this Chronicle will, it is confidently expected, be considered a valuable addition ; and the laudable avidity evinced by the Corporation, under whose patronage it appears, as well as by numerous natives of the metropolis, to possess every work relating to its early history, justifies the hope that by them at least it will be favourably received.

Towards the end of the volume the following ILLUSTRATIONS are introduced, the most important of which have, with the obliging permission of Henry Woodthorpe, Esq. the Town Clerk, been copied from the invaluable muniments in the City Archives.

A curious Latin Poem on the dispute between King Edward the First and the King of France, relative to some lands in Gascony in 1295. From the MS. in the Town Clerk's Office, marked Liber Custumarium.

A fragment of a French Poem on the treacherous conduct of Sir Thomas Turbeville, in 1296. From the Cottonian MS. Caligula A. xviii.

A Letter from King Edward the Third to Edward Prince of Wales, giving an account of the Battle of Sluys, dated 28th June, 14 Edward III. 1340. From the MS. in the Town Clerk's Office, marked Letter F.

A Letter from Edward the Black Prince to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of London, dated 22nd of October 1356, detailing the proceedings of the English Army under his command, and informing them of the BATTLE OF POICTIERS. From the MS. in the Town Clerk's Office, marked Letter G.

A Letter from a Priest, named Robert Prite, to some Nobleman, dated 8th of December 1356; in which he speaks of the Battle of Poitiers, and relates other news of the times. From the original in the Cottonian MS. Caligula D. III.

A Declaration of Bernard Du Troy, a Gascon gentleman, made on his death-bed, 1st of July 1361, that he was the individual who took John King of France prisoner at the Battle of Poitiers. Also from the Cotton MS. Caligula D. III.

A Proclamation of Richard II., dated at Chelmsford on the 5th of July 1381, to the Earl of Warwick and others, denying that Wat Tyler and his followers were supported by his authority; and commanding them to use all possible means for the preservation of the peace in Warwickshire, and the places under their jurisdiction. Also from the Cottonian MS. Caligula D. III.

A Poem, by Lydgate, describing the Expedition of Henry the Fifth into France, the Battle of Agincourt, and the magnificent Pageant prepared by the City of London, in honour of his return to the Metropolis. From the Harleian MS. 565.

Another Poem, by Lydgate, describing the Pageant and Reception of Henry the Sixth into London on the 21st of February 1431, after his coronation as King of France. Also from the Harleian MS. 565.

Two copies of a Poem on the reconciliation of the Lords of the Yorkist faction with King Henry the Sixth and his adherents; the one from the Cottonian MS. Nero A. vi., and the other from the Cottonian MS. Vespasianus B. xvi.

A Ballad sent by a Pursuivant to the Sheriffs of London and their Brethren on May Day at Bishop's Wood, at an honorable dinner; each of them bringing his dish: by John Lydgate. From Ashmole's MS. No. 6943.

Two copies of a Ballad, also by Lydgate, entitled "London Lickpenny;" the one from the Harleian MS. 542, and the other from the Harleian MS. 367.

A short Ballad, also by Lydgate, upon the Emptiness of his Purse. From the Harleian MS. 2255.

Another Ballad, by Lydgate, in ridicule of the Forked Head-dresses of Females. From the Harleian MS. 2255.

A Ballad on Fraudulent Millers and Bakers; likewise by Lydgate. From the same MS.

The whole of these articles were written at the periods to which they relate, and the greater part of them are for the first time printed; whilst the few that have been before published, are inserted either because more correct copies have been discovered, or because they are so intimately connected with some of the others that they could not with propriety be omitted.

Most of the pieces enumerated have escaped the notice of Historians; and as they tend in an important degree to illustrate the Manners and Customs of the Metropolis, their appearance in this volume cannot fail, it is hoped, to be acceptable to those who are interested in the early History of London or of this Kingdom.

And on the Sonday at nyght, the lord Scalys and Mathewe Gough with their mayny, and with men of London, wenten over the brige to the Stulpes in Suthwerke, and faught with the capitayne and his host al that nyght til on the Mone-day ix of the klok, and that was seint Thomas even, and than the capitayne fired the drawbrige; and there was slayne Mathewe Gough and Sutton the alderman: and after that the capitayne fledde into Sussex, and thider was pursued and slayne. And after, in the same yere, Richard Plantagenet duke of Yorke came out of Irland unto Westm', with roial people, lowely bisechyng the kyng that justice and execucion of his lawes myght be hadde upon alle such persones about him and in al his realme, frome the highest degree unto the lowist, as were long tyme noisid and detectid of high treason ageinst his persone and the wele of his realme, offring hymself therto, and his service at the kings comaundement, to spend bothe his body and goodes : and yet it might not be perfourmed. Than sone after was callid a set a parliament, wherynne alle the comoens were aggreed, and rightfully electe hym as heire apparent of England, nought to procede in any other matiers till that were graunted by the lordes, whereto the kyng and lordes wold not consent nor graunte, but anon brake up the parliamente.

NOTE K. page 50.

In the Cottonian MS. is the following copy of the letter from queen Isabel and prince Edward :

"Isabel, by the grace of God quene of England, ladie of Ireland and countes of Pountif, and we Edward, the eldist son of the kyng of England, duke of Guyen, erle of Chestre, of Pontif and of Mounstroille, to alle the comonialte of London senden gretyng. Forasmoch as we have bifore this tyme sent to you by oure lettres how we ben comen into this lande with good arreie and in good manere, for the honor and profite of Holy Chirch, and of oure dere lord the kyng and alle the realme, with alle oure myght and power to kepe and mayntene, as we and alle the good folke of the seid realme are holden to done, and upon that we praied you that ye wolde be helping to us in as moche as ye shulde mowe in this quarell that is for the comon profite of alle the realme, and we have had in thys time non answere of the seid lettres, ne knowe not your wille in that partie : wherfore we send to you ageyne, and charge you and praie that ye bere you so ageins us that we have no cause to greve you, but that ye ben to us helping by alle the weres that ye may or shalle conne and mowe. For weteth wele in certain that we, and alle thoo that ben comen with us into this realme, think not to doo, ne we shulle not done if it like God, eny thing but that shal be for the comon profite of the realme, but onely to distroie Hugh Spencer our enymy, and enymy to alle the seid realme, as ye well knowe ; wherfore we praie you, and charge you in the feith that ye owe to oure lord the kyng and to us, and up alle that ye shalle mowe forfeit ayens us, that if the said Hugh Spencer oure enemy come withynne your power, that ye do hym oure wille, and that ye leve not in no manner, as ye desire honour and profite of us alle, and of alle the realme; and weteth of that ye done oure praier and mandement, we shalle the more be holden to you, and also ye shalle gete you worship and profite if ye send us hastely alle your wille. Yeven at Baldok the vij<sup>te</sup> day of Octobre."

NOTE L. page 54.

"In this yere Edward Bailolle, the son of John Bailolle sometyme kyng of Scotland, came into England chalengyng his right heritage, that is to sey, the kingdome of Scotland; with whome many grete lordes of England went into Scotland, and at Domfrevelyn arrividden, where fast by an abbeie ij m<sup>l</sup> of Englisshemen discomfited xij m<sup>l</sup> of Scottes." &c.

NOTE M. page 58.

In the copy in the Cottonian MS. this event is said to have occurred in the fifteenth year of Edw. III.—"Also this same yere, that is to seye the xv yere of his reigne of England, was the first yere of his reigne of France, and he came fro Tourney."

NOTE N. page 64.

"This yere [A<sup>o</sup>. xxxiiij. Edw. III.] the blode all fresshe flowid out of the tombe of Thomas sometyme erle of Lancastre. Also this yere the kyng chose his sepulture at Westmynstre. Also this yere, the yere of oure lord m<sup>l</sup> iij<sup>c</sup> lx, the xiiij day of Aprile and the moru after day, the kyng Edward with his hoste lay about Paris," &c. as is related in the text to have occurred in the thirty-fifth year of Edward III., though the king's expedition to Calais against the regent of France is stated to have occurred in the thirty-fourth year.

NOTE M. page 67.

The sheriff called in the text Adam Wymondham, stands as Adam Wymbyng-ham in the Cottonian MS.; and though the death of dame Blaunch duchess of Lancaster is there mentioned, no notice occurs of the pestilence.

NOTE N. page 70.

The following is the account of the events in this year [A<sup>o</sup>. xlix. Edw. III.], in the copy in the Cottonian MS.—"In this yere, at the towne of Brugges in Flaundes, was tretid upon diverse articles hangynge atwixt the pope and kyng Edward. Also the same tyme at Brugges was tretid for a peas bitwixt the ij realmes Fraunce and England. Also this yere deide William Witlesey archebisshop of Caunterburye, and the monkes chose the cardinall of England; and the kyng was wroth therwith, and wolde not consent therto, ne the pope nor cardinall; and so Maister Symon succedid."

NOTE O. page 71.

The only event noticed in the copy in the Cottonian MS. in the 51st Edw. III. is the death of Edward prince of Wales, and his burial at Canterbury.

NOTE P. page 71.

It is singular that in both MSS. the events mentioned in the text, as well as the death of Edward the Third, are said to have occurred in the fifty-second year of that monarch's reign, for he died in the fifty-first year, namely on the 21st of June 1377. The commencement of his reign is always calculated from the 25th of January 1327, when his father resigned the crown.

NOTE Q. page 77.

NOTE R. page 79.

A°. xiv. Richard II.—No other circumstance is mentioned under this year in the Cottonian MS., than the following,

"In this yere was the good man at the litle Condit mordred."

NOTE S. page 80.

The occurrences mentioned in the text as having taken place in the 15th of Richard II. are in the Cottonian MS. assigned to the following year; but no notice is taken under either year of "the pley of S<sup>t</sup>. Katerine."

NOTE T. page 80.

King Richard's expedition into Ireland in the 18th year of his reign, is not noticed in the copy in the Cottonian MS.

NOTE U. page 81.

The Cottonian MS. adds, that the earl of Arundel was beheaded at Tower hill, "in the same place where S<sup>r</sup>. Symon of Burelle was bihedid. And the duke of Gloucestre the kyngs uncle was foule murdered at Caleis, in the Princes inne, with ij towailis made snarewise, and put about his necke. And therle of Warwik and lord Cobham were dampned to perpetuall prison;" which is stated in the text to have occurred in the 21st of Ric. II. "And the parliament was enjoined to Shrowesbury, unto the xv day of seint Hillarie, where it was endid, and where moch people were disheritid."

NOTE X. page 83.

Instead of the words "and of Braybroke &c." the following occur in the copy in the Cottonian MS.

"and of the bisshop of London, Braybroke, putten a supplicacion to the kyng, the tenor wherof foloweth in this fourme;

"To our full excellent right doutful sovereigne and ful graciouse lord the kyng.

NOTE BB. page 94.

The copy in the Cottonian MS. adds, "And about the fest of seint Laurence the duke of Clarence seilid into Fraunce, to help the duke of Orliaunce," but it takes no notice of the arrival of the prince and his attendants in London, or of the departure of the duke of Clarence, the duke of York, &c. to Southampton.

NOTE CC. page 96.

The mayor and sheriffs mentioned in the text and in the copy in the Cottonian MS., as having served those offices in the 14th Hen. IV., are in the latter also assigned to the 1st Hen. V.; whilst the mayor and sheriffs stated in the text to have served in the 1st Hen. V., are in the latter attributed to the 2nd year of that monarch's reign. But there is manifestly much confusion respecting the year of the king's reign in which the events occurred, in the copy from which the text has been taken, and which will again be alluded to in a future note.

NOTE DD. page 96.

The copy in the Cottonian MS. adds, "And were put in his owne sepulture that he made himself, with quene Anne his wiffe." This is the only circumstance mentioned under the 1st Hen. V. in that MS.: and under the 2nd Hen. V., the transactions concerning Sir John Oldcastle &c., which in the text are stated to have occurred in the preceding year, are related.

NOTE EE. page 99.

In the Cottonian MS. under the third year of Hen. V., and when the mayor and sheriffs mentioned in the text as serving in the 2nd Hen. V. are stated to have held those offices, the king's expedition is properly noticed. This error cannot be explained in any other manner than by attributing it to the transcriber; for it is notorious that Henry quitted England, besieged and captured Harfleur, and fought the battle of Agincourt, in the third year of his reign. The account of that expedition is so differently related from that in the text, that it is here given at length.

"The kyng with alle his hoste seiled over the see with ij m<sup>l</sup> shippis and mo; and the xvj day of August a litle from Harflete he landid: and the Saturday next after thassumpcion of oure lady he leide siege about Harflete, and contynued the sege unto the Sonday next before the fest of seint Michel, upon which Sonday the towne of Harflete was delyvered to the king, that was the xxij day of Septembre. But it is to wite, that on Tuesday bifore, that was the xvij day of Septembre, at xij of the belle wythynne nyght, the lordes that were capteynes and governours of the towne, that is to sey the lord Gaucourt, the lord Tutvill, and mo other lordes, senten out an haraude of armes unto the duke of Clarence, praiyng him at the reverence of God that he wolde send to the kyng, bisechyng hym that he wolde of his high and gracious lordship, graunt them leve to trete with what persones that the kyng wolde assigne to them. And the kyng at the reverence of God, and at there request, assigned therle of Dorset, the lord Fitz Hugh, and Sr. Thomas of Erpyngham, to here what thei wolde desire. And thei desired that the kyng wold not werre upon them fro that houre at mydnyght, unto the Sonday next after the fest of seint Michel; and but it were so that thei were rescued by bataile of the Frensshe kyng or with the dolphyn by that day, thei to yelde the towne to the kyng, and thei to have their lives and goodes. And the kyng sent them worde that if thei wolde delyver the towne on the morwe next after the houre of mydnyght aforseid, without any condicion, he wolde accepte it, and in any other wise he bad them seke no trete. And yet the Frensshe lordes praied our lordes to biseke the kyng at the reverence of God and of our lady, that he wolde graunte them that same Tuesday nyght, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and the Sonday til an houre after none: and in that meane tyme the lordes that were capitayns of the towne, to come to the kyng with xxij knyghts and squyers with them, of the moost sufficient men withyn the towne, and thei to be sworn openly afore alle the people upon Goddis body. But it so were that the Frensshe kyng or the dolphyn rescued them by that Sonday, by the houre of none or anon after none, thei to delyver the towne to the kyng, and alle there bodies and goodes to done with them whatsoever him list, without eny condicion, with that the kyng wolde suffre them to send to the Frensshe kyng viij persones out of the towne, lettyng him wite in what plite thei stond: and they graunted them. And upon the Wednesday by the morowe these lordes comen out of the towne, and xxij knyghts with them; and come the procession solempnely and stately, with xxiiij copis of a sute before Goddis body, with many worshipful lordes, knyghts, and squyers, and other moch multitude of people fro the kings tent, as solempnely done and as stately as any man saugh ever such a thing done bfore that time; but the kyng was not there present. And the Frenssh lordes there made there othes upon the holy sacrament. And the othes thus done, the Frensshe lordes with their felasship were brought to the kyngs tents, and there thei eten in the kyngs halle: but in all this tyme thei sawe not the kyng. And when thei had eten, they were departid and delyvered to certen lordes for to in hostage unto the Sonday at the houre after none, as it was accordid whan thei received. And at the houre on Sonday after none, the kyng had a tent pight on an hille bfore the towne, and there he sate in his estate roial, and al his lordis about hym; and than came the Frensshe lordes with iij<sup>xx</sup> and iiij with them, of the moost sufficient men that were withynne the towne, and to the kyng in his propre persone yelded up the keies of the towne, and there bodies and goodes to the kyngs grace without eny condicion: and this was done the xxij day of Septembre, the yere of our lord m<sup>l</sup> iiij<sup>c</sup> xv. And anon after that, the kyng ostered from thens xxj daies thurgh the realme of Fraunce, fro Harflete toward Caley; and the Friday, that is to sey the day of the holy seints Crispyn and Crispinian, alle the roial power of Fraunce, excepte the Frenssh kyng, the dolphyn, the duke of Bourgoyne, and the duke of Barre were bfore the kyng in his heigh weie, as he shulde passe to Caleis, faire embatailed in iij batailes, to the nombre of lx m<sup>l</sup> men of armes, and the fairist armed men that eny man saugh ever in any place. And the kyng seyng wele that thei wolde not suffre hym to passe withouten bataile, seid to his title mayny, 'Sires and felawes, the yonder men letten us of oure wey ; and if thei wol com to us, let every man preve hymself a good man this day, and avaunt banere in the best tyme of the yere.' And he rode furth with his basnet upon his hedde, and all other men of armes went upon theire fete a fast paas in holle arraie, an Englysshe myle er thei assemblid. And thugh the grace of God the kyng made his heigh wey thugh the thikkeste prees of alle the bataile. And there was slayne the duke of Launson, the duke of Braban, the duke of Bare, vj erles, the constable of Fraunce, the seneschall of Henaude, the maister Arblastar, and of other lordes grete plente. And there was take the duke of Orliaunce, the duke of Burbon, the counte of Richmond, the counte Ewe, the marschal Sir Bursequant, and many other lordes and knyghts. And there were slayne of Frensshemmen v m<sup>l</sup>, and of al estats of Englysshemen passid not xxviij persones. And of estats of thenglysshe, the duke of Yorke, therle of Suffolke, ij knyghts, and Davy Game ; and of gentilmen no moo. And the xxiiij day of Novembre the kyng with all his prisoners came to London in good prosperite. Also this same yere bigan the general counsell at Custance."

NOTE FF. page 103.

The arrival of the emperor is differently noticed in the copy in the Cottonian MS.

"This yere [A°. iv. Hen. V.] the vij day of Maij came themperour of Almayne, Segismundus, to London ; and the fest of seint George was deferrid til his comyng, and than solempnely holden at Wyndisore : and at the procession the kyng went on the upper side of themperour, and so alle the masse tyme stode in the higher place, and at mete he sate on the right side of themperour ; and the duke of Bedford, and the chaunceller of England, and the bisshop of Develyn, sate on the left side of themperour : and the duke of Briga and another duke of themperours compeigny sate upon the kings side ; and all these saten on that oon side of the table. And the first sotelte was oure lady armyng seint George, and an angel doying on his spores ; the ij<sup>de</sup> sotelte was seint George ridyng and fightyng with the dragon, with his spere in his hand ; the iij<sup>de</sup> sotelte was a castel, and seint George, and the kynges doughter ledynge the lambe in at the castel gates. And all these sotelties were served to the emperor and to the kyng, and no ferther : and other lordes were served with other sotelties after theire degrees. And the same tyme duke William of Holand came into England ; but he was not at that fest. Also the emperor laye at Westminster the tyme that he abode in England ; and the duke of Holand laie at the bisshop of Elies place. And after Midsomer the duke of Holand seilid home ageyne. And after that themperour and the kyng went to Caleys : and than the duke of Burgoyne and the counte Charles his son came to Gravenyng ; and the sent thider his brother the duke of Gloucestre, and therle of the March, to abide there in hostage while the duke of Burgoyne come to Caleys. And in the myddis of the river the lordes metten togider ; and the dukes son of Burgoyne receyved there oure lords, and led them furth with hym into Flaundres : and the erle of Warwik receyved the duke of Burgoyne and brought him to Caleys, where he spake with the kyng of diverse matiers atwixt them ij. And he toke his leve of the kyng : and the erle of Warwik brought hym agayne to Grevenyng Water ; at which tyme also the counte Charlis brought our lordes to the same place, where either of these lordes token live of other. And than the kyng retorned ageyne into England ; and themperour seiled into Holand, and so passid furth into Custaunce."

NOTE GG. page 106.

"with all the lordships longyng thereto. And than the duke of Clarence with other lordes rode furth to Cane : and upon our Lady even the Assumpcion, he mustred hym before the towne of Cane ; and the Tuesday next after our Lady day, that was the xxvij day of August, the kyng with all his host came to Cane, and ther leide his sege, and contynued til our Ladies even the Nativite, upon which even by strong assaute the towne was wonne. And than the kyng leide strong sege to the castel, which was yolden to hym. And while he was abidyng at Cane, he sent the duke of Clarence with other lordes to Baieux, and bisegid and wan it. And the same yere the kyng bisegid Argentyne, bothe towne and castell, which were yolden to hym. Also the kyng wan many castelles and townes, and strong abbeis long before seint Edwardis day."

NOTE HH. page 106.

"upon the moru after the fest of seint Lucie the virgyn and martir, the yere of our lord m<sup>l</sup> iij<sup>c</sup> xvij. Also the same yere, about Alhalowen tide, the kyng leide a sege to Falowes, and contynued it to the xx day of Decembre : and than thei of the towne desired to trete with the kyng. And the kyng committid the trete unto Thomas erle of Salisbury, to Herry lord Fitz Hugh, to S<sup>r</sup>. John Cornewaille, and S<sup>r</sup>. William Harington knight, as commissioners for his partie : and as for the partie of the towne, S<sup>r</sup>. John Meultone, S<sup>r</sup>. Gilbert Moustains, lordes of Faiete, capitaynes of men of armes and of shot withynne the towne of Faloyes, and with them upon the same entrete, the lord of Gamulle ; which parties entreted and accorded upon the articles and appointments folowyng."

[Then follows the treaty alluded to, which extends to eleven folios, but it is not of sufficient interest to require insertion.]

therein then follows at some length, and is succeeded by a minute account of the French towns and castles taken by the duke of Bedford, the earl of Salisbury, Sir John Radcliff seneschal of Guyenne, and Sir John Beauchamp. It is also noticed, that in that year "therle of the March with many other lordes and great retinue went into Irland, and there deide." After stating the loss of the Scots at the battle of Vermuil, it is added, "Wherfore it may be seid of them the worde of olde tyme,

'That in the croke of the mone came thei thiderwarde,
And in the wilde wanyng went thei homewarde.'"

"Also this yere after Eastre the king helde his parliament at Westm', which bigan the laste day of Aprile; and the kyng come to London the xxvij day of Aprile, which was Saturday, with his moder in his chare from Wyndisore unto Seint Paulis; and at the west dore he was taken out of his chare by his uncle the duke of Gloucestre, and by his bele uncle the duke of Excestre: and he went upon his fete fro the west dore to the steires, and so up into the quere; and than he was borne up and offred: and than was set upon a courser and so rood thurgh the Chepe and London to Kenyngton. And the kyng held his see diverse daies in the parliament." Then follows an account of the grants made by that parliament to the king, and of some statutes enacted therein. The success of the English army under the earl of Salisbury is related in a most minute manner, and the agreement for the surrender of Mauns is given at length: but nothing is stated of sufficient interest to justify so long a note as a copy of the narrative and treaty in question would require.

"defense of the cite. And anon after the bisshop of Wynchestre sent a lettre over the see into France unto the duke of Bedford, the tenor wherof after foloweth:

'To the most high and myghty prynce and my right noble lord the regent of Fraunce and duke of Bedford.

'Right high and myghty prynce and my right noble and after oon, levist lord, I recommand me unto you with al myn hert and affinite: and as ye desire the welfare of the kyng our sovereigne lord and of his realmes of England and Fraunce, and your owne wele and our alle, so haste you hider; for by my trouth if ye tarie we shal put this land in a venture with a felde; such a brother ye have here, God make him a good man, for your wisdom knoweth wele that the prosperite of Fraunce stant in the welfare of England. High and myghtie prince, I bisech you holdeth Maister John Estcourt, your counseilour, escusid of his tarry-

ing, for it is moch ayenst his wille, but the counsell here hath made hym; and ye hist to give credence to your chamberleyne S<sup>r</sup>. William Boteller. The blessid Trinite kepe you. Writon in grete haste on Alhalowen even,

by your true servaunt to my lives ende,

HENRY WYNCHESTRE.'

"And ageyn Cristmas the duke of Bedford came out of Fraunce into England. And the kyng helde his Cristmas at Eltham; and the bisshop of Wynchestre helde his Cristmas at Marton: and bicause that he wolde not come in the cite of London, for evil wille that he hadde therto, the counsel was holden at Seint Albones after Cristmas: but there wolde not the duke of Gloucestre come. At which counsel was ordeyned that the parliament shulde ben at Leicestre, which parliament bigan in the bigynnyng of Lenton; where, by good trete and arbitracion of the lords spiriele and temperel, was made a good unite and accorde atwixt the duke of Gloucestre and the bisshop of Wynchestre, in fourme as after folowith."

[Then follows the "Arbitirament", which extends to six folios.]

"And thus was the accord made atwixt these ij lordes of Gloucestre and Wynchestre; and the parliament was ajourned til after Easter. Also the same yere of the kyng, and of our lord m<sup>l</sup> iiij<sup>c</sup> xxv, Arthur erle of Richemont, and Richard his brother, and the baron of Columbe, with great multitude of Britons, leien at the sege of Seint Jaquys de Ber'on to the some of xx m<sup>l</sup> of Britons, which gaven assaute to the towne, and were beten and myghtely put of, rebukid and slayne of them iiij<sup>c</sup>: and in the towne were cheveteynes Sir Thomas Remston, Sir Philip Braunch, Sir Nichol Burdet, and Sir Richard Stafford, and with them ix<sup>c</sup> persones, Englysshe and Normaunes. And the nyght folowyng, fast by the towne, in ij milles, were iiij<sup>c</sup> Britons loggid; and the seid knyghts with a certeyn mayny went out and brent the milles, and slough of the Britons bitwene iiij and iiij score. And afterward Arthur and his men maden another assaute, and there losten vij<sup>xx</sup> and oon standardes and getens, and viij<sup>xx</sup> men of cote armes and legge harneis; and Arthur was sore hurt in the thigh nygh the body: and so thei withdrowen them homeward to Breteigne. But Thomas de Burgh with people of the garison folowid after them, and slough of them xxv<sup>c</sup>. And the Britons lefte byhynde them there gones and there wyne, the some of vj<sup>c</sup> pipes of wyne, with flour, brede, figges, reisins, and grete plente of egges and butter, with moch fissahe, and so fled with mischief."

NOTE RR. page 116.

A<sup>o</sup>. vj. Hen. VI.—"This yere the kyng held his parliament at Westminster, and was ajourned til after Cristmas: and in this parliament the kyng helde his see diverse daies." Then follows an account of the grants made to the king, and of other proceedings therein. "Also this yere the erle of Salisbury sailid over the see with a feire compeigny; and the Carde come to London upon seint Gilis day: and the maire of London, and aldermen, with the craftes, roden ayenst him, and receyved him worthely. Also the same yere therle of Sarum was slayne at the sege of Orliaunce: but yet was the sege holden by other lordes and contynued, but not long after."

NOTE SS. page 116.

The death of the earl of Salisbury is, as has just been noticed, stated in the Cottonian MS. to have taken place in the preceding year. "This yere [A°. vij. Hen. VI.] about Midsommer, the Cardenal seilid over the see with a feire compeigny wagid for to have, and werred upon the Lollards in Prage: but a litel before the departyng of the Cardenal out of England, therle of Suffolk, the lord Talbot, the lord Scalys, and many other lordes, knyghts, and squyers, were taken and slayne at the sege of Orliaunce, and the sege broken."

[The capture of the Maid of Orleans is then noticed in nearly the same words as those in the text; and is followed by a copy of the letter which the duke of Burgoyne "wrote unto the kyng at Caleis."]

"Superscripcion: To my moost doubtid lord the kyng.

"My moost doubtid lord, I recomaunde unto you asmoch and as mykely as I may. And please it you to wete my moost doubtid lorde, that this day, the xxiiij day of Maij, about vj at after none, your adversaries and myn, that were with grete power in the towne of Compeigne, afore which towne I am loggid with my folke, and with those that ye senten undre governaunce of S<sup>r</sup>. John Mountgomery and S<sup>r</sup>. John Steward, came out with grete puyssaunce upon the van warde which was next them; and with them came she that thei calle the Pucelle, with many of there chief chiefteynes: and ageine them anone came my cosyn S<sup>r</sup>. John Luxemburgh, and other of your folkes and of myn, which made right grete and sharp resistance: and I came thider in myn owne persone, and founde that the seid adversaries were put abak, and by the pleasaunce of our blessid Creatour it fil so; and God yaf me such grace, that she that thei calle the Pucelle was taken, and with many hire capitaynes, knyghts, and squyers, and other taken, and drowned, and dedde, whose names I knowe not yet."

This letter is succeeded by an account of the "Journeis that were done after the kyng was landid at Caleis."

"The first Journey was at Pountnake: the Pucelle with a grete power was put to flight.

"The second Journey was in a wodde biside Compeigne: the Pucelles mayny ij<sup>c</sup> were discourteited of xxx Englisshemen, and there were xij Armynaks prisoners.

"The iiij<sup>d</sup> Journey the Pucelle was taken at Compeigne, and many of her mayny slayne and drowned.

DUKE OF LANCASTER, IN THE CHURCH OF SAINT PAUL'S, LONDON.

THE church of St. Paul, London, contains within its limits three acres of land and a half; one rood and a half, and six perches covered. The length of the same church contains dclxxxx feet. The breadth of the same church contains cxxx feet. The height of the western dome contains from the altar cij feet. The height of the dome of the new building contains from the altar lxxxvij feet. The whole pile of the church contains in height cl. feet with the cross. The height of the stone fabric of the belfry of the same church contains, from the level ground, cclx feet. The height of the wooden fabric of the same belfry contains cclxxiiij feet. But altogether it does not exceed five hundred and xx<sup>ty</sup> feet. Also the ball of the same belfry is capable of containing, if it were vacant, ten bushels of corn; the rotundity of which contains xxxvj inches of diameter, which make three feet; the surface of which, if it were perfectly round, ought to contain four thousand lxvij inches, which make xxvij square feet, and the fourth part of one square foot. The staff of the cross of the same belfry contains in height xv feet. The cross beam of which contains six feet. In which cross, in the year of our Lord one thousand cccxxxix, on the xith of the kalends of August, namely on the feast of saint Mary Magdalene, many precious reliques of several saints were deposited with great solemnity of procession, for the preservation of the same cross and the whole building beneath them; that the Almighty God, through the glorious merits of all the saints whose reliques are contained in that cross, might deign to preserve them from tempest and peril under his protection. Of whose mercy to all the xxvij procuring succour to the fabric of this church, cl days are set apart at every time of the year, besides the Roman ordinances which are xliij<sup>or</sup> in the year, and very many other benefits.

- first Christian king of England. In the year of our Lord one thousand lxxxvij, on the seventh day of the month of July. The church of St. Paul, London, and all things which were in it, with great part of the city, were consumed by fire; in the time of Maurice bishop of London, and in the reign of the first king of the Normans, William the Conqueror who founded the Monasteries of Battle in Sussex, where himself had fought, and Bermondsey near London. In the year of our Lord one thousand cxxxij, the ides of April, the city of London was burnt in chief part, from the fire of Gilbert Beget. In the year of our Lord one thousand cxxxvij the church of saint Paul, London, was burnt by a fire kindled at London bridge, and which advanced thence to the church without the bars of the new temple, London. In the year one thousand cl, so strong was the ice, that the Thames could be crossed over by people on horseback. In the year one thousand ccij such great rains, thunder and hail fell, that quadrangular stones, to the bigness of eggs descended from the sky mixt with rain; by which trees, vines, and corn-fields were much destroyed; men were bruised, and birds flying through the air seemed to bear lighted coals in their beaks, and to set the houses on fire. In the year of our Lord one thousand cciiij, began the order of preaching freres in the parts of Tholouse under their founder Dominic. The same year a most bitter winter endured from the circumcision of our Lord until the annunciation. In the year of our Lord one thousand ccxiiij, St. Francis began the order of minor freres near Assise. And in the year one thousand ccxxiiij, they first came into England, two years before the decease of saint Francis. In the year one thousand ccxxj, at the festival of saint Luke the Evangelist a violent wind rushed from the north, shattering houses and orchards, and the towers of churches; and there were seen fiery dragons and evil spirits fluttering in the tempest. In the year one thousand cclvij, at Teukysbury, a certain Jew on Saturday fell into a cesspool, and would not allow himself to be drawn out on the Saturday, on account of his reverence of his sabbath; but Richard de Clare earl of Gloucester would not allow him to be drawn out on the following Sunday because of his reverence of his own sabbath; and so he died. In the year M. cccxvj, a very great pestilence of animals and men, and inundation of rains took place, whence was produced so great a dearness of corn, that a quarter of wheat was sold for xl s'. In the year of our Lord M. cccxlvij, there began a great plague at London, about the festival of saint Michael, and it endured until the festival of saint Peter ad vincula next following. In the year of our Lord one thousand ccclxj, the xvijth kl. of February, on the festival of saint Maurus abbot, happened a violent and terrible gale throughout all England. In the same year was a second plague, in which died that noble and brave man, Henry duke of Lancaster. In the year of our Lord one thousand ccclxviiij, was a third plague, in which died the noble lady Blanche,

A COPY OF THE GREAT TABLET HANGING IN THE SAME PLACE, BY THE SAID TOMB OF THE SAID ROGER LATELY BISHOP OF LONDON.

IN the beginning God created the heaven and earth and all things which are in them. But on the sixth day from the creation of the world, was made the first-formed Adam. The first age of the world, from Adam to Noeh according to the Hebrews, contains a thousand, six hundred and fifty six years ; according to the Seventy Interpreters, two thousand two hundred xliij years. But according to Jerome not completely two thousand ; according to Metodus two thousand. The cause of which diversity is, that these do not compute according to the manner of sacred Scripture the minutiae of times, or of years, which are over and above the thousands and hundreds of years. From the beginning of the world until Noeh's flood, are two thousand two hundred fifty six years. The second age from Noeh until Abraham, contains according to the Seventy Interpreters, a thousand and seventy two years : according to the Hebrews, a thousand two hundred and twenty two years. The third age from Abraham until David, contains according to the Hebrews, eight hundred and xl two years ; but according to the Seventy Interpreters much less, since they are deficient by two years. The fourth age from David until the carrying away captive into Babylon, contains according to the Hebrews, four hundred and seventy three years ; according to the Seventy Interpreters little less, for they are deficient in one year. The fifth age, from the carrying away captive into Babylon, until Christ, contains five hundred and eighty five years. According to others, five hundred and ninety years. The sixth age is from Christ until the end of the world. The years from the beginning of the world until the incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ, are five thousand ninety nine. The years from the incarnation of the same until his passion, thirty three incomplete. The years from the creation of the world until the destruction of Troy, iij m<sup>l</sup> xxx years. From the destruction of Troy until the erection of new Troy, which is now called London, lxiiij years. From the erection of new Troy to the erection of the Roman city, ccclxxxx years. From the building of the city until the coming of Christ, dcc.xv years. From the beginning of the world iij m<sup>l</sup> lxxxiiij years, after the destruction of Troy, namely, in the mc and fifth year before the incarnation of Christ ; Brutus, a certain noble person sprung of the Trojan race, with a great multitude of Trojans, through the response of the goddess Diana, entered into the island formerly called Albion and inhabited by giants; and destroyed all the giants, amongst whom was one very mighty, by name Gogmagog; and he called that land after his own name Britain. Afterwards by the Saxons or Angles that conquered it, it was called England. And the same Brutus the first king of the Britons constructed the first city of Britain, which is now called London, in remembrance of the Troy before destroyed, calling it Trinovantum, that is new Troy, which for a long time was called Trinovans. Ely the priest was then reigning in Judea, and the ark of the testimony captured by the Philistines. After the death of Brutus there reigned in Britain lvij kings. Afterwards reigned king Lud, who strongly built the walls of the city of the Trinovantes, which was by him called Caerlud, in English LOUDES DON, and surrounded it with innumerable towers; which he loved above all the cities of the realm, and therefore directed that they should build houses and edifices, which should surpass the buildings of other cities. At his death his corpse was most nobly laid up in the aforesaid city near the gate which he himself built, and was called from his name LUDESGATE. At length the English called it LONDENE: afterwards the Normans called it LOUNDRÉS which in Latin is called Londonia. After the death of Lud reigned Cassibellanus his brother, namely, in the lvijth year before Christ's incarnation; in whose time came Julius Cesar into Britain with a copious multitude, and being twice overcome and routed and driven off, the third time being recalled into Britain, he, by the aid of Androgeus duke of Kent, made it tributary to the Roman power.

VERSES.

"Whosoever thou art: if thou wishest to know the English kings or laws, thou wilt read by perusing these. I will record the greater or nobler kings; when they reigned, and where the people buried them. Four thousand and a score years was Adam made before Brutus."

Brutus in the xvth year of his age departing from Italy, arriving at the island Leogecia in his ship, consulted there Diana, saying:

THE WORDS OF BRUTUS: VERSES.

"O mighty Goddess of the woods, terror of the wild boars, who hast power to pass through ethereal space and the infernal abodes: unfold earthly fate; and say what lands thou wishest us to inhabit; Tell also the dwelling in which I shall venerate thee for ever; in which I shall consecrate temples to thee with virgin dances."

THE REPLY OF DIANA.

"Brutus, under the setting sun, beyond the Gallic realms, there is an island in the ocean all inclosed by sea; there is an island in the ocean, once inhabited by giants, now indeed desert, fit for thy tribes. This seek, for it shall be to thee

" a perpetual abode ; Hence shall arise another Troy to thy sons ; Here from
 " thine offspring shall Kings be born, and to them shall all the earth be subject."

Brutus, comforted with such a reply, and having prepared a fleet, steered with his people into the Island Albion which is now called England, and began to reign therein, in the xxxvth year of his age ; who in the xxiiijth of his reign is buried at London. In the year one thousand two hundred and forty five, after the death of Brutus, king Lucius flourishes. In the year of grace cxxiiij was the coronation of Lucius the first Christian king, who after reigning lxxvij years, was buried at London. From the death of Brutus until the reign of Arthur, there reigned in England separately C kings, of whom sixteen were Christians. In the year dxvj, was the coronation of king Arthur, who reigned xxvj years ; concerning whose death or burial, histories do not relate anything certain. In the year diij<sup>xxvj</sup> from the Angles, Albion is called Anglia, divided into eight kingdoms ; that is, Kent, Suthsex, Westsex, Mercia, Estsex, Estanglia, Derram, and Bervic. In the year dc and one, began to reign king Sebert the renovator of the church of Westminster, which he then dedicated to the blessed Peter, in which the king himself in the xvth year of his reign is entombed. In the year dcxxxv, the coronation of king Oswald, who after reigning nine years is crowned with martyrdom. In the year dcxxxvj the coronation of king Oswyny, who in the ixth year of his reign being martyred, lies at Tynmouth. In the year dcclxxvj the coronation of king Ethelbrist, who in the viijth year of his reign being made a martyr, was buried at Hereford. In the year dcccxxj the coronation and martyrdom of king Kenelm, who was buried at Wynchcombe. In the year dccciv the coronation of king Edward at Bures, who after xv years obtaining the laurels of martyrdom, rests in the same place. In the year dccclxxj the coronation of king Alfred, the first monarch of England ; who in the xxixth year of his government was buried at Wynton. In the year dcccc and one, the coronation of Edward the first, son of Alfred, at Kyngeston ; he governed xxiiij<sup>or</sup> years, and is buried at London. In the year dccccxxiiij, the coronation of king Athelstan at Kyngeston ; he after xvj years was buried at Malmesbury. In the year dccccxl, the coronation of king Edward the second, son of Athelstan, at Kyngeston ; he in the sixth year of his reign is buried at Glastonbury. In the year dccccxlvj, the coronation of king Edred at Kyngeston, who in the ixth year of his reign was buried at Wynton. In the year dcccclv, the coronation of king Edwyn at Kyngeston ; he reigned four years ; and was buried at Wynton. In the year dcccclix, the coronation of king Edgar, who reigned xvj years ; he lies at Glastonbury. In the year dccccclxxv, the coronation of Edward the second, son of Edgar, at Westminster, who in the iiijth year of his reign adorned with martyrdom, is buried at Septon. In the year dccccclxxix, the coronation of king Ethelred at Kyngeston, and in the xxxviiijth year of his reign he is buried at London. In the year one thousand xvj, the coronation of Edward the third iron-side, at Kyngeston, and his burial at Glastonbury. In the year one thousand xvij, the coronation of king Knute at Westminster, and in the xixth year of his reign, his burial at Wynton. In the year one thousand xxxv, the coronation of king Harold the first; he in the fifth year of his reign was buried at London. In the year one thousand xl, the coronation of king Hardeknute, and in the second year of his reign, his burial at Wynton. From the nativity of Jesus Christ until the reign of Edward the second, king and confessor, there passed separately in England a hundred kings, and lx<sup>ty</sup> and five kings; of whom Oswyn, Oswald, Ethelbert, Kenelm, Edward, Edward, were martyred; and Constans, Cedwall, Sebert, Wynfrid, Ethelred, Edbert, Offa, and Kynred were buried in monks' orders. In the year of grace one thousand xlij, the coronation of saint Edward king and confessor, at Wynton; who in the xxvth year of his reign is honorably inshrined in the church of Westminster, which he himself had made to be erected. In the year one thousand lxxvj, the coronation of duke Harald at Westminster, and his burial at Waltham. In the year one thousand lxxvij, the coronation of William the first, duke of Normandy, at Westminster; who in the xlvijth year of his reign caused England to be described in a volume called DOMUSDAY; and in the iiijth year after, is buried at Caen. In the year one thousand lxxx, the coronation of William Rufus at Westminster, and in the xijth year of his reign, he is buried at Wynton. In the year one thousand C the coronation of king Henry the first, brother of William Rufus, at Westminster, who after reigning xxxv years, was buried at Redyng. In the year Mcxxxv, the coronation of king Stephen at Westminster, he in the xixth year of his reign was buried at Feversham. In the year one thousand cliij, the coronation of the emperor Henry the second at Westminster, and in the xxxvth year of his reign, his burial at Fontevrault. In the year one thousand clxiiij, was the translation of saint Edward king and confessor, at Westminster, on the third of the Ides of October, by the blessed Thomas archbishop of Canterbury. In the year one thousand clxxxix, the coronation of king Richard at Westminster, who when he had reigned xj<sup>en</sup>. years, was buried at Fontevrault. In the year one thousand clxxxxix, the coronation of king John at Westminster; and in the xvijth year of his government he is buried at Wygorn. In the year one thousand ccxvj, the coronation of Henry, son of king John at Gloucester; who in the fourth year following was again crowned at Westminster; in the lvijth of his reign is interred at the same place. In the year one thousand cclxxiiij, the xiiij. kl. of September, the coronation of Edward the first after the Conquest, at Westminster, who in the xxxvth year of his reign is buried at the same place. In the year one thousand cccvij, the x kl. of March, the coronation of Edward the second at Westminster; who in the

xxth year of his reign is buried at Gloucester. In the year one thousand cccxxvj, is crowned Edward the third, the flower of the Christian knighthood, at Westminster, in the xiiijth year of his age. In the year one thousand cccxlvj, on the third day of September, the same lord king Edward began to besiege the town of Caleys with the castle, and continued his siege until the third day of August, the succeeding year, on which day he subjugated the said town with the castle to his dominion. In the year one thousand cccxl, the viij kl. of July, the illustrious king of England Edward the third conquered the French at le Sclus in a naval engagement. In the year one thousand cccxlvj the vijth kl. of October, the French are vanquished by the English at Cressy, and the king of Bohemia is punished. In the same year, the xvijth kl. of November, the Scots are overcome by the English at Durham, and David king of Scotland is taken. In the year M<sup>l</sup>. ccclvj the xiiijth kl. of October, was the capture of John king of France at Peyters, by the excellent prince Edward the first-born of the gracious king Edward the third. In the year one thousand ccc lxxvj, the vjth of the Ides of June, died the same prince Edward, on which day fell the festival of the Trinity. In the year one thousand ccclxxvij, the xjth kl. of July, died king Edward the third, the flower of the Christian knighthood; and on the third of the nones of the same month, he was buried at Westminster, in the ljst. year of his reign. In the year one thousand ccclxxvij, the xvijth kl. of August, at Westminster, was the coronation of Richard the second, son of Edward prince of Wales, in the xjth year of his age. In the year one thousand ccclxxxix, the third of the Ides of October, at Westminster, was the coronation of the illustrious king Henry the fourth. In the year one thousand ccccxiiij, the ninth day of April, at Westminster, was the coronation of the illustrious king Henry the fifth; who, at Boys Seynt Vyncent near Paris in France, ended his life on the last day of August, in the xth year of his reign, commencing. And afterwards his bones were interred at Westminster. In the year of our Lord one thousand cccc xxij, Henry the sixth king of England, then a child of not the age of one year, was crowned on the day of saint Leonard bishop and confessor, at Westminster, in the viijth year of his reign, commencing. And afterwards, the same king was crowned king of France at Paris, in the church of the blessed Mary there, on the xvjth day of December, in the commencement of the xth year of his reign.

IN the 36th page of the preceding Chronicle it is stated that "In this yere (1295) the kyng [Edward the first] was defraunded of his lond in Gascoigne in this manner, sothly : the kyng hadde yoven the forseyd lond of Gascoyne to the kynges suster of Fraunce, for that she schulde be yoyned to hym in fre mariage : and be some of his counseill enfeffed here in the sayd lond of Gascoigne, whiche lond of Gascoigne sche yaf to Charles here brother, and to other ; and the matrymoigne betwen here and kyng Edward sche sette at noughte, and wolde noughte stonden therto."—That circumstance is the subject of the following Fragment of a curious Poem preserved in the archives of the Corporation of the City of London, in the MS. entitled Liber Custumarium, fol. 84 ; from which it has been extracted by the obliging permission of Henry Woodthorpe, Esq. the Town Clerk. The leaf which contained the concluding stanzas has been lost ; but judging from the number of those which remain, it originally consisted of about nine more verses. It is written in the hand of the period in which the events to which it alludes took place, and as the documents in the volume from which it is copied end in the succeeding reign, there is every reason to presume that it was entered in the Records of the City of London within a short period after it was composed. Every line of each verse contains the same letter in the middle of the line, and every line ends with the same letter : these two letters are placed in the middle and at the end of each verse, separated from the words to which they belong, but connected with them by lines in the manner in which the first verse of the Poem is here printed, and which has been considered sufficient to show the singular manner in which it was originally written.

Of the conduct which caused Sir Thomas Turbeville's execution, the following fragment of a curious contemporary poem in the Cottonian MS. Caligula A. xvij, presents perhaps the most accurate information which is extant. It immediately precedes, and is written in the same hand as, the only contemporary copy of the Roll of Carlaverock which is known to exist, and hence it is highly probable that it was composed by the same person. Under any circumstances, however, it cannot fail to be deemed to possess sufficient interest to render it a valuable illustration to the passage in the text.

P. 57. "This same yere [anno 14th Edw. III. 1340] the kyng faught with the "Frensshmen at Scluse, where there were sclayn of Frensshmen xxx m<sup>l</sup>; and the "kyng toke and scomfyted at the sayd bataill of Scluse cccx schippes." Of this passage, the following letter from king Edward the Third to Edward the Black Prince, giving an account of his victory over the French fleet at Sclyse, on Saturday the 24th of June 1340,—which, with the permission of Henry Woodthorpe, Esq., the Town Clerk, has also been extracted from the City Archives, letter F. fol. 39,—is an interesting illustration. This document, which has escaped the attention of Historians, presents an authentic detail of that memorable event; and it is evident from it that Robert de Avesbury, the contemporary writer upon whom the greatest reliance has hitherto been placed, has fallen into some errors in his narrative of the transaction. He informs us that on the day after the battle a rumour of it reached London, but that it was discredited until the ensuing Wednesday, namely the 28th of June, when the Prince of Wales received a letter from the king informing him of his success, of which letter that writer asserts that the annexed was a copy :

"Edwardus Dei Gracia Rex Angliæ et Franciæ et Dominus Hiberniæ, &c. Effusam circa nos hiis diebus propiciacionis divinæ clemenciam, ad vestri contemplacionem et læticiam, vobis ducimus intimandam. Scitis autem, immo vos et [* Sic.] alios* fideles nostri quadam participacione sensitis, quantis fuimus et sumus guerrarum lacesiti turbinibus, et velut in mari magno procellosis fluctibus agitati. Sed licet sint mirabiles elaciones maris, mirabilior tamen in altis Dominus, qui procellam convertens in auram, jam inter tot adversa clementissime nos respexit. Nam cum pridem ordinassemus passagium nostrum necessarium versus partes Flandriæ, Dominus Philippus de Valesio, persecutor noster infestissimus, hoc prævidens, classem maximam navium armatarum quam in expugnacionem nostram nostrorumque fidelium misit, ut vel sic nos caperet, vel nostrum transitum impediret. qui transitus si, quod absit, fuisset impeditus, ardua negocia, quæ prosequimur, fuissent penitus in ruina: quinimmo nos et nostri fuissemus verisi-[† Sic.] militer confusionis† magnæ subjecti. Sed Deus misericordiarum, videns nos in tantis periculis constitutos, graciosius et cicius, quam humana ratio judicare poterat, misit nobis magnum navale subsidium, et insperatum numerum arma-torum, ac semper ventum prosperum juxta votum, et sic, sub spe cœlestis auxilii, et justiciæ nostræ fiducia, dictum portum navigio venientes, invenimus dictam classem et hostes nostros ibidem paratissimos ad prælium in multitudine copiosa; quibus, in festo Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptistæ proximo præterito, ipse spes nostra Christus deus per conflictum fortem et validum nos prævalere concessit, facta strage non modica dictorum hostium, capta eciam quodammodo tota dicta classe, cum læsione gentis nostræ modica respective, sicque tucior de cetero patebit transitus nostris fidelibus supra mare, et alia bona plurima sunt ex hoc nobis et nostris fidelibus verisimiliter proventura, de quo spes pulcherima jam arridet. Nos autem, tantam cœlestem gratiam devotissime contemplantes, ipsi Salvatori nostro laudes et gracias humiliter exsolvimus, deprecantes, ut, qui jam et semper in oportunitatibus copiosis graciis * nos prævenit continuatis, nos auxiliis prosequatur, et nobis [* &c.] regere temporaliter sic concedat in terris, ut in eo lætemur æternaliter in excelsis. Dilectionem vestram attente rogamus et per Dei misericordiam obsecramus, quatinus soli Deo vivo, qui tantum signum nobiscum fecit in bonum, in devotæ laudis præconium assurgentes, nos, jam in remotis agentes, et nedum jura nostra recuperare, sed sanctam ecclesiam catholicam attollere, et in justitia populum regere cupientes, sibi devotis oracionum instantiis recomendare curetis, facientes pro nobis missas, et alia piæ placacionis officia misericorditer exerceri, et ad hoc clerum et populum vestræ diocesis salutaribus monitis inducatis, ut Deus ipse, miseratus nobis, progressum felicem et exitum annuat graciosum, detque servo suo cor docile, ut recte judicare possimus et regere et sic facere quod præcipit, ut mereamur assequi quod promittit. Teste Edwardo duce Cornubiæ et Comite Cestriæ filio nostro carissimo Custode Angliæ apud Waltham Sanctæ Crucis xxviii<sup>vo</sup>. die Junii, anno Regni nostri Angliæ xiii<sup>to</sup>. Regni vero Franciæ primo."

It is however manifest from that document having been tested by the Prince of Wales, that it was rather a proclamation issued in consequence of the dispatch from the king to the prince, than the dispatch itself, of which the letter now for the first time printed may be deemed the only copy which is extant. Nor must it be forgotten that the date affixed to the article given by Avesbury tends to excite a suspicion of its authenticity; for it is tested by the prince at Waltham Holy Cross upon the precise day, the 28th of June, on which the king's letter was written, and which could not therefore possibly have arrived on the day in question at Waltham. It is somewhat singular that as the battle was concluded on the 25th of June, the king should not have written until the 28th; but this may perhaps be accounted for by those arrangements which his success would necessarily have required, and which may be supposed to have engaged the monarch's whole attention for some days. The letter in Avesbury's Annals gives no particulars of the battle, though that writer relates that the enemy were beaten; that more than thirty thousand of them were slain; that many leapt into the sea from fear and were drowned; and that their fleet consisted of two hundred large ships, on board of one of which four hundred dead bodies were found. The Royal dispatch, however, affords much more minute information, and corrects the statements both in Avesbury and in the preceding Chronicle. It asserts that the French fleet amounted to one hundred and eighty sail; that they were nobly defended the whole of a day and a night; that they were all captured in the engagement excepting twenty-four which took to flight, and part of them were subsequently taken at sea; that the number of the men at arms and other armed persons amounted to thirty-five thousand, of whom five thousand escaped; that the English ships captured by the French at Middleburgh were then retaken; and that among the prizes were three or four as large as 'the Christopher,' which we may infer was then the largest ship of the English navy.

It is unquestionable from what has been said, that this document supplies some important facts in the history of the times, whilst its entry among the Records of the City of London tends to establish that the Mayor of the city was accustomed at that early period to receive an official account of every public transaction, and of which another example will be found in a subsequent page.

The events which led to the battle of the Swyne, or as it is more generally termed of the Schluse, are too familiar to require repetition.

P. 63. "And in this yere, that is to seye the yere of oure lord a m<sup>l</sup> ccclvjth,
"the xix day of Septembre, kyng John of Fraunce was taken at the bataill of
"Peyters be the doughty prynce Edward, the firste sone of kyng Edward." &c.

It would be difficult to name a more interesting document connected with English History than that by which, through the courtesy of Henry Woodthorpe, Esq., Town Clerk of the City of London, the passage in the text will be illustrated; namely, a copy of the letter from Edward the Black Prince to the Mayor, Aldermen and Comonalty of London, acquainting them with the achievement of the battle of Poitiers. This important record, which has never before been printed, occurs among the archives of the city, in a contemporary MS. entitled Letter G. fol. 53<sup>b</sup>. and was, there can be little doubt, entered into that volume soon after the receipt of the original.

The greater part of the Prince's letter is occupied by the detail of the proceedings of the army for some days previous to the battle, and in describing the efforts of the Cardinal Peregrin to produce a peace or truce between the kings of France and England; whilst the conflict itself is mentioned in a few words. Independently of the particulars of the English forces and their rencontres with the enemy which this letter so minutely relates, its most important statement is that of the precise day when the battle took place, for historians have differed materially upon the point. The Prince, however, expressly says that it occurred on the eve of the feast of St. Matthew, i. e. the 20th of September. His letter was dated at Bordeaux on the 22nd of the following month, and was sent to the Mayor of London by the Prince's chamberlain Sir Neel Loring; and the manner in which he refers the Mayor and Citizens to that distinguished knight for further information, cannot fail to be noticed, from its great similarity to the conclusion of a modern military dispatch. Another feature of this and other documents of the same nature in early periods, is the great simplicity and modesty with which they are written. An expression of gratitude to God alone interrupts the unadorned narrative; and the defeat of an army infinitely superior in numbers, and the capture of one of the most powerful sovereigns of the times together with his eldest son, are thus laconically related: "The battle took place on the eve of St. Matthew; and, praise be to God, the enemy were discomfited, and the king and his son were taken, and great numbers of other people taken and slain." To present as many contemporary documents as could be collected relative to this memorable event, two other letters are introduced, as well as the affidavit of an individual who claimed to have been the person to whom king John of France surrendered himself.

One of the letters alluded to, which is printed in the Archæologia, vol. i. p. 213, is also from the Black Prince, to Reginald Bryan bishop of Worcester, dated at Bordeaux on the 20th of November, briefly informing him of his success, which he attributes in a great measure to the efficacy of that prelate's prayers.

The other letter is from Robert Prite to some English nobleman, dated on the 8th of December 1356, whose clerk, or probably priest, he styles himself, and is taken from the original on vellum in the Cottonian MS. Caligula D. III. f. 33. After mentioning the battle of Poitiers, the particulars of which he says he will learn from a knight whom the duke of Lancaster had sent into England to the king, the writer acquaints him with some other news of the time, as well as with what had occurred in some of his towns; and entreats him to come over as soon as possible. This letter, which is now for the first time printed, though not so important as the others, is nevertheless of interest, as connected with the battle of Poitiers, and with other public and private transactions of the period.

The third document on the subject is the solemn declaration of Bernard du Troy, a Gascon gentleman, made on his death-bed the 1st of July 1361, that he was the person who took the king of France prisoner at the battle of Poitiers; which point it is evident from this instrument, as well as from historians, had been much disputed. This very curious article, which also occurs in the Cottonian MS. just mentioned, is highly interesting; for it not only shows who were the claimants to the honour of having captured the king, but the ardour with which that claim was supported. It is however doubtful whether the love of fame or pecuniary interest prompted this declaration at so awful a moment; but his motive, like those of most other human actions, was probably of a mixed nature; for whatever might be the renown which was attached to the exploit, the ransom to which the true claimant would be entitled must have been an object of great consideration to him or to his heirs. Du Troy carefully provides, that those who would support his pretensions with their swords should partake of the benefits which might arise from their valour; and this circumstance presents a curious picture of the manners of the age. Sir Denys de Morbeque of whom he speaks, is thus noticed by Froissart. "There was much pressing at this time through eagerness of taking the king: and those that were nearest to him, and knew him, cried out 'Surrender yourself, surrender yourself, or you are a dead man.' In that part of the field was a young knight from St. Omer, who was engaged by a salary in the service of the king of England: his name was Denis de Morbeque, who for five years had attached himself to the English, on account of having been banished in his younger days from France for a murder committed in an affray at St. Omer.

It fortunately happened for this knight, that he was at the time near to the king of France when he was so much pulled about. He by dint of force, for he was very strong and robust, pushed through the crowd and said to the king in good French, 'Sire, sire, surrender yourself.' The king, who found himself very disagreeably situated, turning to him, asked 'To whom shall I surrender myself; to whom? Where is my cousin the Prince of Wales? if I could see him I would speak to him.' 'Sire,' replied Sir Denys, 'he is not here; but surrender yourself to me, and I will lead you to him.' 'Who are you?' said the king. 'Sire, I am Denys de Morbeque, a knight from Artois, but I serve the king of England because I cannot belong to France, having forfeited all I possessed there.' The king then gave him his right-hand glove, and said 'I surrender myself to you.' There was much crowding and pushing about, for every one was eager to cry out 'I have taken him.'"

Most of the witnesses to Du Troy's declaration were celebrated peers and knights both of England and France.

The rebellion noticed in the text is so important an event in the history of England as well as of the Metropolis, that no apology can be required for the insertion of an inedited document in any degree connected with it. In the Fadera, tom. vii. are several proclamations on the same subject, and among them one tested at London on the 15th June 1381, directed to the sheriff of Kent; but the following, dated at Chelmsford on the 5th of July in that year, has never, it is believed, been printed. It appears from it that the rebels had asserted that they were supported by the king's authority; and His Majesty therefore, not merely denies the fact, but commands the earl of Warwick and the other persons in that county to whom the instrument is addressed, to use every possible effort to suppress the disturbance of the public peace, in places under their jurisdiction.

In pp. 99—102, as well as in pp. 157—159, an account is given of Henry the Fifth's expedition into France in the year 1415, and of the battle of Agincourt. In the Harleian MS. N° 565, from which the preceding Chronicle was transcribed, the following Poem occurs on the same subject, a correct copy of which has never been published, though at the end of Hearne's edition of Elmham's Life of Henry the Fifth, a poem is inserted so very similar to the annexed that it may be presumed to have been taken from another copy of the same. It is said to have been transcribed from the Cottonian MS. Vitellius D. XII., which is not now extant: but upon collating this piece with the one printed by Hearne, it appears, after allowing for the various readings which frequently occur in different copies of an early poem, that many words were erroneously given by that zealous antiquary. Notwithstanding that it possesses but little claim to poetical merit, it is highly curious, from its being nearly if not quite contemporary with the events which it relates; for there can be no doubt of its having been a production of the prolific pen of that "drivelling monk," as he has been severely termed, the monk of Bury, John Lydgate, several of whose other pieces, from their presenting a faithful but rude picture of the manners and transactions of the times, are also inserted in this volume. The garrulous monk, in the article which is the subject of these remarks, particularly notices every circumstance in which the Mayor and Citizens of the Metropolis were concerned, and hence it is an appropriate illustration of a "CHRONICLE OF LONDON." It is worthy of observation, that the story of the tennis-balls having been sent as a satirical present from the Dauphin to Henry the Fifth, and to which Shakspeare alludes, is frequently mentioned in the poem, and furnishes the writer with several metaphors.

" Ambass. He therefore sends you, meeter for your spirit,
This tun of treasure; and, in lieu of this,
Desires you, let the dukedoms that you claim,
Hear no more of you—This the Dauphin speaks.

K. Hen. What treasure, uncle?

Exeter. Tennis-balls, my liege.

K. Hen. We are glad the Dauphin is so pleasant with us;
His present, and your pains, we thank you for:
When we have match'd our rackets to these balls,
We will in France, by God's grace, play a set,
Shall strike his father's crown into the hazard:

Tell him, he hath made a match with such a wrangler,
That all the courts of France will be disturb'd
With chaces.

And tell the pleasant prince,—this mock of his
Hath turn'd his balls to gun stones<sup>1</sup>; and his soul
Shall stand sore charged for the wasteful vengeance
That shall fly with them :”

Henry the Fifth, Act I. Scene II.

But besides the historical information with which the poem abounds, and which is corroborated by the best authorities, it cannot fail to be considered of much interest, from the description of the magnificent reception of the king into London, after his return from France.

“For they shall play with Harflete,
A game at tynes, as y wene,
Mine engynes that bethe so kene
They shall be sett besyde this hill,
Over all Harflew that they may sene
For to loke if they play well;
Go we to game be Godys grace,
Myne children ben redy everych on
Every greet gonne that there was,
In his mouth he hadde a ston.”

But Shakspeare's expressions are still more similar to those of an inedited Chronicler of the period: “And whan the kyng had hard ther wordis and the answare of the dolphynne, he was wondre sore agreved and right evell assayd towarde the Frensshmen, and toward the kyng and the Dolphynne, and thought to avenge bym upon them as sone as Good wold send hym grace and myght, and anon lette make tenys ballis for the Dolpynne in all the hast that they myght be made; and they were grete gonne stones for the Dolpynne to play wythall.” Cottonian MSS. Claudius A. viii.

A POEM BY JOHN LYDGATE, MONK OF BURY, DESCRIBING THE EXPEDITION OF HENRY THE FIFTH INTO FRANCE IN 1415, THE BATTLE OF AGINCOURT, AND
THE KING'S RECEPTION INTO LONDON ON HIS RETURN.

[Harl. MSS. 565.]

God that all this world gan make
And dyed for us on a tre,
Save Ingelond for Mary sake,
Sothfast God in Trinyte ;
And kepe oure kyng that is so free,
That is gracious and good with all,
And graunt hym evermore the gree,
Curteys Crist oure kyng ryall.

Oure kyng sente into France ful rathe,
Hys bassatours bothe faire and free ;
His owne right for to have,
That is, Gyan and Normande ;
He bad delyvre that his schulde be,
All that oughte kyng Edward,
Or ellys tell hym certeynle,
He itt gette with dynt of swerd.
Wot ye right well that thus it was,
Gloria tibi Trinitas.

And than answerde the dolfyn bold
To oure bassatours sone ageyn,
Me thinke youre kyng he is nought old,
No werrys for to maynteyn ;
Grete well youre kyng, he seyde, so yonge
That is bothe gentill and small ;
A tonne of tenys ballys I shall hym sende,
For to pleye hym with all.

A dien Sire, seide oure lordis alle,
 For there they wolde no longer lende :
 They token there leve, bothe grete and smalle,
 And hom to Ingelond they gum wende ;
 And thanne they sette the tale on ende,
 All that the Dolfyn to them gon say ;
 I schal hym thanke thanne, seyde our kyng,
 Be the grace of God if that y may.

The kyng of Fraunce that is so old,
 Onto oure kyng he sente on hy,
 And prayde trewa that he wolde hold
 For the love of seynt Mary.
 Oure Cherlys of Fraunce gret well, or ye wende,
 The Dolfyn prowed withinne his wall,
 Swyche tenys ballys I schal hym sende
 As schall tere the roof all of his all,

Oure kyng ordeyned with all his myght,
 For to amende that is amys,
 And that is all for Engeland ryght,
 To geten agen that scholde ben his ;
 That is, al Normandie forsothe y wys,
 Be right of eritage he scholde it have,
 Therof he seith he wyll nought mys,
 Crist kepe his body sounde and save.

Oure kyng at Westmenster he lay,
 And his bretheren everych on ;
 And other many lordes that is no nay,
 The kyng to them seyde anon,
 To Fraunce y thenke to take the way,
 Sires, he seyde, be swete seynt John ;
 Of good counsaill y will yow pray,
 Wat is youre will what y shall don ?
Wot ye right well, &c.

The duk of Clarence, thanne seyde he,
 My lord it is my right full will,
 And other lordys right manye,
 We hold it right reson and skyll,
 To Fraunce we wolde yow redy bryng,
 With gladder will than we kon say.
 Gramercy, sires, seide our kyng,
 I schall yow qwyte if that y may.
Wot ye right well, &c.

I warne yow he seyde bothe olde and yonge,
 Make yow redy withoughte delay ;
 At Southampton to mete youre kyng,
 At Lammas on seynt Petrys day ;
 Be the grace of God ant swete Mary
 Over the see y thenke to passe :
 The kyng let ordeyn sone in hy,
 What y mene ye knowe the casse.

After anon, with right good chere,
 Hyse gret gonnys and engynes stronge,
 At London he schipped them alle in fere,
 And sone fro Westmenster then sprongye,
 With alle hyse lordys, sothe to saye :
 The mair was redy and mette hym there,
 With all the craftes in good araye,
 It is ful soth what nede to swere.

Heyl, comely kyng, the mair gan say,
 The grace of God now be with the,
 And speed the well in thy jornay,
 Almyghti God in Trinite,
 And graunt the evermore the degre,
 To felle thin enemys bothe nyght and day ;
 Amen, seyde alle the comunalte,
 Graunt mercy, sire, oure kyng gan say.
Wot ye right well, &c.

To seynt Poulys he held the way ;
 He offred there full worthyly :
 Fro thens to the quen that same day,
 And tok his leve ful hendely ;
 And thorough out London thanne gan he ryde ;
 To seynt George he com in hye,
 And there he offred that iche tyde,
 And other lordys that weren hym bye.

And fro thens to Suhthampton, unto that strond,
 For sothe he wold no longer there dwell :
 XV hundryd shippys redy there he fond,
 With riche sayles and heye topcastell.
 Lordys of this lond, oure kyng gan there sell,
 For a milion of gold as y herd say,
 Therefore there truayle was quyte them full well,
 For they wolde a mad a queynte aray.

Therefore song it was wailaway ;
 There lyvys they lost anon right in hast :
 And oure kyng with riall aray,
 To the se he past.
 And landyd in Normandye, at the water of Sayn,
 At the pyle of Ketecaus, the sothe y yow say,
 On oure lady even, the assumpcion, the thirddde yer of hys rayn,
 And boldely hys baner there he gan display.

And to the town of Harflew there he tok the way,
 And mustred his meyne faire before the town,
 And many other lordys I dar well say,
 With baners brighte and many penoun :
 And there they pyght there tentys a down,
 That were embroudyd with armys gay ;
 First, the kynges tente with the crown,
 And all othere lordes in good aray.

My brother Clarence, oure kyng gan say,
 The tother syde shull ye kepe,
 With my doughter and hire maydyns gay,
 To wake the Frensshmen of there slepe.
 London he seyde shall with here mete,
 My gonnys shall lyn upon this grene,
 For they shall play with Harflete,
 A game at tynes as y wene,
Wot ye right well, &c.

Mine engynes that bethe so kene,
 They shull be sett be syde this hill,
 Over all Harflewe that they may sene,
 For to loke if they play well.
 Go we to game be Godys grace,
 Myne children ben redy everych on,
 Every greet gonne that there was,
 In his mouth he hadde a ston.

The Capteyn of Harflewe sone anon
 To oure kyng he sente on hy,
 To wyte what was his wille to don
 That he was come with his navy ;
 Delivere me this toune, oure kyng gan say ;
 Nay sire, he seyde, be seynt Denys ;
 Thanne shall y it gete, if y may,
 Be the grace of God and myn devys.
Wot ye right well, &c.

Myne pleyers that y have hedyr brought,
 Their ballys beth of stonys round,
 Be the helpe of hym that me dere bought,
 They shall youre wall have to ground.
 The Frensshmen cried ' Amound,' ' Amound ;'
 This toun, they seyde, us moste kepe.
 The kyng, seith he, will nought fro this ground
 Or he have yolde this toun Harflete.

Tenys seyde the grete gonne,
 How felawes go we to game,
 Among the houses of Harflewe rounne,
 It dide the Frensshmen right gret grame ;
 Fyftene before, seyde London, tho
 His ball wol faire he gan it throwe,
 That the stepyll of Harflete and bellys also,
 With his breth he dide down blowe.

XXX<sup>d</sup> is myn, seyde Messagere,
 And smartly went his way ;
 Ther wallys that were mad right sure,
 He brast them down the sothe to say.
 The kynges doughter, seyde here, how thei play,
 Herkenyth myne maydenys in this tyde ;
 Fyve and forty that is no nay,
 The wallys wente down on every syde.
Wot ye right well, &c.

The engynes seide, to longe we abyde,
 Let us gon to ben on assent ;
 Wherever that the ball gan glyde,
 The houses of Harflew they all to rent.
 An Englyssh man the bulwerk brent,
 Women cryed alas ! that they were bore,
 The Frensshmen seide now be we shent,
 From us this toun now it is lore.
Wot ye right well, &c.

It is best now that we therfore,
 That we beseche the kyng of grace,
 That he asayle us now no more,
 For to dystroye us in this place ;
 For but the Dolfyn us reskewe,
 This toun to deliver wyl we sikerly,
 Messagers thei let make newe,
 And to the kyng they come in hy.

The lord Gaucourt certeynly,
 For he was capteyn in that place,
 And Gilliam Bocher com hym by,
 And othere also bothe more and lasse ;
 To fore the kyng whan they com was,
 I wot they sette them on there kne ;
 Heil comely kyng, thei seyde, in this plas,
 The grace of God now is with the.

Of trews we wolde beseche the,
 Unto it be Sounday atte non,
 And but it thanne reskewyd be,
 We shall to yow delyvere this toun :
 The kyng thanne seyde to them ful son
 I graunte you grace al this tyde,
 Somme of yow go forth anon,
 The remenaunt with me shall abyde.

The capteyn hied hym with al his myght,
 Unto Roon for to ryde,
 He wende the Dolfyn have founde there right
 But he was goon, durst he nought abyde.
 Of helpe the capteyn besowte that tyde,
 Harflew from us is lost for ay,
 The wallys ben doun on every syde,
 We may no longere it kepe, be God verray.

Of good counsaill I wolde yow pray,
 What is youre will what shall y don,
 Bataill us moste thene be Soneday,
 Or ellys deliver hym the toun.
 The lordys of Roon togydere gon roun,
 And bad he sholde the town up yelde,
 The kyng of Ingelond is fers as lyon,
 We wil noughte mete hym in the felde.

The capteyn went agen withoute lettyng,
Before the kyng on kneys gan fall,
Heyl, he seyde, comely kyng,
Most worthy prynce in this world riall,
Here y have brought yow the keyes alle,
Of Harflew that faire toun,
All is youre owne both towr and halle,
At your will Lord and at your croun.
Wot ye right well, &c.

I thanke God, thann eseyde oure kyng,
And Mary his modir that is so fre ;
Myn uncle Dorset withoute lettyng,
Capteyn of Harflewe schall ye be.
And al that is in that toun,
Wot stille shall abyde,
To maken up that is adoun,
That hath ben fellyd on every syde.

Meyne, I now shall with yow ride,
To se the toun there overall,
Wyff no child lett non abyde,
But have them ought bothe grete and small ;
And let stufte the toun overall,
With Englysshmen thereinne to be.
They left no Frenssh blod withinne the wall,
But hadde all oute the comunalte.

Four hundred women and children men myght se,
Whanne they wenten out sore gon they wepe ;
The grete gonne engynes to the trewele,
They were brought into Harflete,
Oure kyng unto the castell yede,
And restyd hym there as his will was
Sire, he seyde, so God me spede
To Caleys warde I thenke to pas
Wot ye right well that thus it was,
Gloria tibi Trinitas.

PASSUS SECUNDUS.

Whanne Harflete was getyn, that ryall toun.
Through the grace of God omnipotent ;
Oure kyng he made hym redy bown,
And to Caleys ward full faire he went,
My brother Clarence verament,
Ye shall ryde al be my syde,
My cosyn York ye take entent,
For ye shall also this tyde.
Wot ye right well, &c.

My cosyn Huntynghdon shall with me ryde,
The erl of Suffolk that is so fre,
The erl of Oxenford shall not abyde,
He shall comen forth with his meyne,
Sire Thomas Erpyngham, that nevere dide faille,
And yit another so mote y thee,
Sire John the knyght of Cornewaille,
He dar abyde and that know yee.

Sire Gilbert Umfreville wil us avayle,
The lord Clyfford so God me spede,
Sire William Boucer that will not faille,
They will us helpe when we hav nede.
Toward Caleys full faire they yede,
In the cuntrey of Picardie,
And out of Normandie they gan ryde,
Now Crist save all the cumpanye.

Our kyng rood forth, blessed he be,
 He sparid neither dale ne doun,
 Be townes grete, and castell hyghe,
 Til he com to the water of Som ;
 The brigge the Frensshemen hadde drawe a doun,
 That over the water he myght nought ryde ;
 Oure kyng made hym redy bown,
 And to the water of Turwyn he com that tyde:

Oure kyng rood forth thanne full good sped,
 Into the countrey of Turvyle,
 To Agyncourt now as he is ride,
 There as oure kyng dyd his bataile ;
 Be the water of Swerdys withoute faile,
 The Frensshemen oure kyng thei did aspye,
 And there they thought him to asaile,
 All in that feld certeynlye.

The Frensshemen hadde oure kynge umbast
 With bataill strong on every syde ;
 The duke of Orlions seyde in hast,
 The kyng of Ingelond with us shall byde ;
 He gaf hym leve this way to ryde,
 Be God, me thenke, he was not wys,
 Therefore shall y now be hys gyde,
 Or that he come to strong Caleyys.

The duke of Braban answerd then,
 And seyde, be God in Trinite
 Ther be so fewe of thise Inglysshmen
 I have no deynte them to se ;
 Alas ! he seyde, what nedith us alle
 To day so many for to comen here,
 XXth of us it will befalle
 Of them on prisonere.

The duk of Burbon sware be seynt Denys,
 And other lordes many on,
 We will goo pleye them at dys,
 The lordys of Ingelond everych on,
 Ther gentilmen seide, be swete seynt John.
 Ther archers be sold full fayr plente,
 And alle the beste bowemen ich on,
 All for a blank of oure mone.

And thanne answerde the duke of Barrye,
 With wordes that were full mochell of pryde,
 Be God, he seyde, y wil not sparye,
 Over the Englysshmen y thenke to ryde;
 And if that they dar us abyde
 We shall overthrowe them alle in fere,
 Goo we and slee them in this tyde,
 And come hom agen to oure dynere.
Wot ye right well, &c.

Oure gracious kyng, that is so good,
 He batailyd hym ful rially;
 Stakes he hewe down in a wood,
 Beforn our archers pyght them on hy;
 Oure ordynaunce the Frensshemen gan aspy,
 They that were ordeynyd for to ryde,
 They lighted down with sorwe and cry,
 And on their feet their gon abyde.

The duke of York thanne full son
 Before oure kyng he fell on kne,
 My liege lord, graunt me a bon,
 For his love that on croys gan die,
 The fore ward this day that ye graunt me,
 To be before yow in this feld;
 Be myn baner sleyn wil y be,
 Or y will turne my backe, or me yelde.

Gramercy, cosyn, seyde our kyng,
 Thenk on the right of mery Ingelond ;
 And thanne he gaff hym his blessyng,
 And bad the duke he sholde up stond ;
 Crist, he seyde, that shop bothe sone and sonde,
 And art lord and kyng of myght,
 This day hold over me thin holy hond,
 And spede me well in al my right.

Help seynt George oure lady knyght,
 Seynt Edward that is so fre,
 Oure lady that art Godys modyr bright,
 And seynt Thomas of Caunterbure ;
 He bad alle men blithe to be,
 And seyde, Felas, well shall we spede,
 Every man in his degre,
 I shall yow quyte full well youre mede.

Oure kyng seyde, Felas, what tyme of day ?
 Sire, thei seyde, it is ner pryme :
 Go we anon to this jornay,
 Be the grace of God it is good tyme,
 For alle the seyntes that lyn in shryne,
 To God for us they be praieng ;
 The religious of Ingelond all benynge,
 'Ora pro nobis' for us they syng.
Wot ye right well, &c.

The kyng knelyd down in that stounde,
 And Englysshmen on every syde,
 And thries there kyssyd the grounde,
 And on there feet gon glyde :
 Crist, seyde the kyng, as y am thi knyght,
 This day me save for Ingelond sake,
 And lat nevere that good Reme for me be fright,
 Ne me on lyve this day be take.

Avaunt baner, withoute lettyng.
 Seynt George before avowe we hyme,
 The baner of the Trynyte forth ye bryng,
 And seynte Edward baner at this tyme;
 Over, he seyde, Lady Hevene Quene,
 Myn own baner with hire shall be;
 The Frensshman seyde al be dene,
 Seynt George all over oure kyng they se.

They triumpyd up full meryly,
 The grete bataille togyder yede;
 Oure archiers shotte full hertyly,
 And made Frensshmen faste to blede;
 There arwes wente full good sped,
 Oure enemyes therwith doun gon falle,
 Thorugh bresplate, habirion, and bassonet yede,
 Slayn there were xj thousand on a rowe alle.

Oure gracious kyng men myghte knowe,
 That day he faught withe his owne hond,
 He sparyd nother heigh no lowe,
 There was no man his dynt myght stond;
 There was nevere no kyng yit in this lond,
 That evere dyd better in a day,
 Therefore all Ingelond may synge oo song,
 'Laus Deo' we may well say.
Wot ye right well, &c.

The duk of Gloucestre, that is no nay,
 That day full worthyly he wroughte,
 On every syde he made good way,
 The Frensshemen faste to grounde he brought.
 The erl of Huntyngdon sparyd nought;
 The erl of Oxenford layd on all soo;
 The yonge erl of Devenshire he ne rought;
 The Frensshmen faste to grounde gan goo.

The duk of Orlions thanne was woo,
 That day was taken prisonere;
 The erl of Ewe he was also;
 The duke of Braband slayn was there;
 The duke of Barre fast hym by;
 The duke of Launson wente nevere away;
 Ne the erle Neverse certeynly,
 Ne many other lordes that y cannot say.

The erl of Rychemond certeynly,
 That day was taken in the feld;
 The erl of Vendue was right sory;
 And Sir Bursegaunt he gan hym yeld.
 And thus oure kyng conqueryd the feld,
 Through the grace of God omnipotent;
 He toke his prisoners yonge and olde,
 And faire to Caleys ward thanne he went:
 The yere of his regne the thridde this was.
Gloria tibi Trinitas.

PASSUS TERCIVS.

And there he restyd verrament,
 At his owne will whilys that it was,
 And shipped thanne in good entent,
 And at Dovor landyd y ges;
 To Caunterbury full fair he past,
 And offered at Seynt Thomas shryne;
 Fro thens sone he rod in hast,
 To Eltham he cam in good tyme.
Wot ye right well, &c.

The Mayr of London was redy bown,
 With alle the craftes of that cite,
 Alle clothyd in red thorough out the town,
 A semely sight it was to se :
 To the Blak heth thanne rod he,
 And spredde the way on every syde ;
 XX<sup>d</sup> M<sup>i</sup> men myght well se,
 Our comely kyng for to abyde.

The kyng from Eltham sone he cam,
 Hyse presenors with hym dede brynge,
 And to the Blak heth ful sone he cam,
 He saw London withoughte lesyng ;
 Heil, ryall London, seyde oure kyng,
 Crist the kepe evere from care ;
 And thanne gaf it his blessyng,
 And praied to Crist that it well fare.

The Mair hym mette with moche honour,
 With all the aldermen without lesyng ;
 Heil, seyde the mair, the conquerour,
 The grace of God with the doth spryng ;
 Heil duk, heil prynce, heil comely kyng,
 Most worthiest Lord undir Crist ryall,
 Heil rulere of Remes withoute lettyng,
 Heil flour of knyghts now over all.

Here is come youre citee all,
 Yow to worchepe and to magnyfye,
 To welcome yow, bothe gret and small,
 With yow everemore to lyve and dye.
 Grauntmercy, Sires, oure kyng gan say ;
 And toward London he gan ride ;
 This was upon seynt Clementys day,
 They wolcomed hym on every syde.

The lordes of Fraunce, thei gan say then,
Ingelond is nought as we wen,
It farith be these Englisshmen,
As it doth be a swarm of ben ;
Ingland is like an hive withinne,
There fleeres makith us full evell to wryng,
Tho ben there arrowes sharpe and kene,
Thoroughoure harneys they do us styng.

To London brigge thanne roodoure kyng,
The processions there they mette hym ryght,
'Ave Rex Anglor,' their gan syng,
'Flos mundi,' thei seyde, Goddys knyght.
To London brigge whan he com ryght,
Upon the gate ther stode on hy,
A gyaunt that was full grym of syght,
To teche the Frensshmen curtesye.

And at the drawe brigge, that is faste by,
To toures there were upright ;
An antelope and a lyon stondyng hym by,
Above them seynt Georgeoure lady knyght,
Besyde hym many an angell bright,
'Benedictus' thei gan synge,
'Qui venit in nomine domin.' goddes knyght,
'Gracia Dei' with yow doth sprynge.

Into London thanne roodoure kyng,
Full goodly there thei gonnen hym grete ;
Thorough out the town thanne gonne they syng,
For joy and merthe yow behete ;
Men and women for joye they alle,
Of his comyn thei weren so fayn,
That the Condyd bothe grete and smalle,
Ran wyn ich on as y herde sayn.

The tour of Cornhill that is so shene,
 I may well say now as y knowe,
 It was full of Patriarkes alle be dene,
 'Cantate' thei songe upon a rowe;
 There bryddes thei gon down throwe,
 An hundred there flewe aboughte oure kyng,
 'Laus ejus' bothe hyghe and lowe
 'In ecclesia sanctorum' thei dyd syng.

Unto the Chepe thanne rood oure kyng;
 To the Condyt whanne he com tho,
 The XII apostelys thei gon syng,
 'Benedict. anima domino'
 XII kynges there were on a rowe,
 They knelyd down be on asent,
 And obles aboughte oure kyng gan throwe,
 And wolcomyd hym with good entent.

The Cros in Chepe verrament,
 It was gret joy it for to beholde;
 It was araied full reverent,
 With a castell right as God wolde,
 With baners brighte beten with gold.
 And angelys senssyd hym that tyde;
 With besaunts riche many a fold,
 They strowed oure kyng on every syde.

Virgynes out of the castell gon glyde,
 For joye of hym they were daunsyng,
 They knelyd a doun alle in that tyde,
 'Nowell,' 'Nowell,' alle thei gon syng.
 Unto Poules thanne rood oure kyng,
 XIII bysshopes hym mette there right,
 The grete bellys thanne did they ryng,
 Upon his feet full faire he light.

And to the heighe auter he went right,
'Te Deum' for joye thanne thei gon syng;
And there he offred to God almyght:
And thanne to Westminster he wente withoute dwellyng.
In xv wokes forsothe, he wroughte al this,
Conquered Harfleu and Agincourt;
Crist brynge there soules all to blys,
That in that day were mort.

Crist that is oure hevene kyng,
His body and soule save and se;
Now all Ingelond may say and syng,
'Blyssyd mote be the Trinite,'
This jornay have ye herd now alle be dene,
The date of Crist I wot is was,
A thousand foure hundred and fyftene.

P. 119. [A° 10 Hen. VI.]—"John Welles, grocer, maior. This same yere, the xvj day of Decembre, G beyng the dominical lettre, kyng Herry the vj<sup>te</sup> was crowned kyng of Fraunce at Parys, in the chirche of Notre Dame, with gret solempnite and rialte; and anoon after he turned ayen into Engeland, and landed at Dovorr the ix day of Feverer', and come to London the xxj day of the same month, where he was ryally resceyved, alle the craftes rydyng ayens hym, all in white."

The following poem by Lydgate presents a very minute account of the manner in which the young monarch was received into London after his coronation as king of France, and of the pageant upon the occasion. Two copies exist in MS. in the British Museum; one in the Harleian MS. 565, which has been literally transcribed; the other in the Cottonian MS. Julius B. II; and the variations between them will be found in the notes. About one third of this article, taken from the former of those MSS., is printed in Malcolm's London, vol. ii. p. 89, but it conveys a very imperfect idea of the whole composition; for not only has the orthography of the extract been modernized, but the most interesting descriptions do not occur. The annexed is therefore, it is presumed, the only correct copy which has ever been published, and it cannot fail to be deemed an exceedingly curious illustration of the passage in "The Chronicle," as well as of the manners of the period. Lydgate does not mention upon what day of the month the circumstance took place, but says that it was "upon a Thorsday" "toward the ende of wyndy Februarie:" and as the 21st of February in 1431 fell on a Thursday, there is little doubt that it was on that day that Henry entered London.

"THE COMYNGE OF THE KYNG OUT OF FRAUNCE TO LONDON." BY JOHN LYDGATE "THE MONK OF BURY."

[Harleian MS. 565. and Cottonian MS. Julius B. II.]

Toward the ende of wyndy Februarie,
Whanne Phebus was in the fysshe roun<sup>1</sup>,
Out of the signe which callyd is Aquarie,
Newe kalendas were entred and begonne,
Of Marches comyng, and the mery sonne,
Upon a Thorsday shed<sup>2</sup> hys bemys bright
Upon London, to make them glad and light.

The stormy reynes<sup>3</sup> of alle there hevynesse,
Were passyd away, and alle there<sup>4</sup> grevaunce,
For the sixte Henry, rote of there gladnesse,
Ther hertys joye, ther worldis suffissaunce,
Be trewe assent<sup>5</sup> crownyd kyng of Fraunce;
The even<sup>6</sup> rejoysyng the day of his repaire,
Made at his comynge the wedir to be so faire.

A tyme, y trowe of God, for hym provydyd,
In alle the hevenes there was no clowde sayne;
From other daies that day was so devydyd,
And fraunchisyd from mystys and from rayn;
The erthe<sup>7</sup> attempred, the wyndes smothe and playne,
The Citezeines thorough out the Citee,
Halwyd that day with gret solempnyte.

And lyk for David after his victorie,
Rejoysyd was al Jerusalem,
So this Cite with laude, pris, and glorie,
For joye mustred lik the sonne bem,
To geve ensample thorough out this Reem;
Al of assent who so can conceyve,
There noble kyng were glad to resceyve.

 As he hath be and yit wil be ful ofte.
 The tour araied with velwetty softe,
 Clothys of gold, silk, and tapicerie,
 As apperteynyth to his regalye.

And at his comyng, of excellent beaute,
 Benygne<sup>3</sup> of port, most womanly of chere,
 There issued out, empresses thre ;
 There here displaied, as Phebus in his<sup>3</sup> spere,
 With crownettys of gold and stones clere ;
 At whos out comyng thei gaf swyche a light,

 This empresse of custum doth embrace :

Grace.

And next here com here suster callyd GRACE.

Passyng famous, and of gret reverence,
 Most desyryd in alle regions ;
 For where that evere shewith here presence,
 She bryngeth gladnes to citees and to townys.

 And next here com the empresse FORTUNE,
 To hym aperyng with many a noble signe,
 And riall tokenys, to shew that he was digne,
 Of God disposyd as lust<sup>2</sup> ordeygne,
 Upon his hed to were crownes tweyne.

Natura Gracia
 et Fortuna. These thre ladies, al of on entent,
 Thre goostly gyftes, hevynly, and devyne,
 Unto the kyng anon they dyd present;
 And to his hignesse they dyd anon enclyne,
 And what they weren pleynty to determyne;
 Grace gaf hym first at his comynge,
 Two riche gyftes, sciens and cunnyng.

Intende pro-

 et regna. Nature gaf hym eke strengthe, and fayrnesse,
 For to be lovyd and dred of every wight;
 Fortune gaf hym eke prosperite, and richesse;
 With this scripture aperyng in ther sight,
 To hym applied of verey due right,
 "First undirstonde and wilfully procede,
 And longe to regne," the scripture seide in dede.

This is to mene, who so undirstondith aright,
 Thow shalt be fortune have long prosperite;
 And be nature thow shalt have strengthe, and myght,
 Forth to procede in long felicity;
 And grace also hath grauntyd unto the,
 Vertuously longe in thi roiall citee,
 With septré and crowne to regne in equitye.

On the right hand of these Empreses,
 Stode thir<sup>3</sup> maydenys verey celestialle;
 Like Phebus bemys shone there golden tresses,
 Upon there hedes ech havyng a crownalle,
 Of port and chere semyng immortalle:
 In sight transsendyng alle erthely creatures,
 So angelik they weren of there figures.

Al clad in white, in tokene of clennesses,
 Liche pure virgynes as in there ententys,
 Schewynge outward an heavenly fresshe brightnesse ;
 Stremyd with sonnys weren alle there garmentys,
 Aforne provyded for pure innocentys :
 Most colombyne of chere and of lokyng,
 Meekly roos up at the comyng of the kyng.

They had on bawdrikes al on saphire hewe,
 Goynge outward gan the kyng salue,
 Hym presentyng with ther gyftes newe,
 Lik as thei<sup>1</sup> thought it was to them due ;
 Whiche gostly gyftes, here in ordre suwe,
 Down descendyng as silver dewe from hevne,
 Al grace includyd<sup>2</sup> withinne the gyftes sewene.

 And the pom cedre, corageus to recomfort :
 Eke othere frutes, whiche that more comown be,
 Quenyngges, peches, costardes, and wardons,
 And othere manye ful faire and freshe to se.

The pome water, and the gentil ricardouns,
 And agaynes hertes for mutegacions,<sup>2</sup>
 Damasyns, whiche with there tast delite,
 Ful gret plente bothe of blak and white.
 And besydes this gracious paradys,
 Al ioghe<sup>3</sup> and gladnesse for to multiplie,
 Two olde men, ful circumspect and wys,

Ther did apere, like folkys faire<sup>4</sup> :
 The ton was Ennok, that<sup>5</sup> other Elye,
 The kyng presentyng ther gyftes ful notable ;
 That God conferme his state ay to be stable,
 The firste seide, withe benynge chere,
 Gretly desyryng his prosperite,
 That non enemy have on hym powere,

Nichil proficiat

P. 139. A° 36 Hen. VI. In this yere "was a grete watch in London, and al the gates kepte every nyght, and ij aldermen watchyng: and withynne a while after the kyng and lordes were accorded, and went a procession in Paulis."

The temporary reconciliation between the adherents of the King and of the Duke of York, so briefly alluded to in the text, and which is best illustrated by the following extract from a contemporary letter, served, like every other event of his times, for the exercise of Lydgate's pen; but his description of it in the following ballad is infinitely more valuable from its historical accuracy, than its poetical merit. Of this article there are two copies extant; one in the Cottonian MS. Nero A. vi. and the other in the Cottonian MS. Vespasianus B. xvi.: the latter copy has been printed, though very erroneously, and with the orthography modernized, by Mr. Sharon Turner; but the former has not been before noticed. As they differ in some places from each other, and are very short, it has been thought advisable that both transcripts should be inserted.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM JOHN BOKKING TO SIR JOHN FASTOLF: DATED
ON THE WEDNESDAY AFTER MID LENT SUNDAY, i. e. 15 MARCH, 1457.

[Paston Letters, vol. i. p. 154.]

"Lyke it your maistership to wyte, that as for tidings, the Counsell is, the fornone, at the blake Frires, for the ease of resortyng of the Lordes that ar withinne the toun; and at afternon at the white Frirers in Fletstrete, for the Lordis with owte the town; and all things shall come to a good conclusion with God is grace; for the Kyng shall come hidre this weke, and the Quene also, as some men sayn, and my Lord Buk and Stafford with hire, and muche puple. My Lord of Caunterbury takith grete peyne up on hym daily, and will write unto yow the certeynte of suche tidings as falle; and shuld have doon or this tyme, saf for that he wolde knowe an ende of the mattre."

UPON THE RECONCILIATION OF THE LORDS OF THE YORKIST FACTION
WITH THE KYNG AND HIS ADHERENTS.

[Cottonian MS. Nero A. vi.]

Whan Charyte ys chosen with stats to stonde,
Stedfast and styll, with oute distaunce,

2 x 2

Then wreth may be exilid out of thys londe,
 And God oure gide to have governaunce;
 Wysdom and welthe with all plesaunce,
 May ryghtfulle reigne, and prosperite,
 For love hath underleyde wrethfull vengeaunce;
 Reioyse Enlond the lords acordid bee.

Reioyse, and thonke God, and sorw no more,
 For now shal encrease thi consolacone;
 Oure enemes quake for drede ful sore,
 That pees ys made that was divisione,
 Whiche ys to them grete confusione,
 And to us joy and felicite;
 God hold them longe in every season,
 That Englund may reioyce, the concord and unite.

Now ys sorw with shame fled yn to Fraunce,
 As a felon that hath forsworne thys lond;
 Love hath put owte malicius governaunce,
 In every place both fee and bonde;
 In Yorke, in Somersett, as y undyrstonde,
 In Warwikke also ys love and charite,
 In Salisbury eke, and yn Northumberlond,
 That every man may reioyce the concord and unite.

 Ben sett yn the same opynyone;
 In every quartre love is thus leide,
 Grace and wisdom hath the dominacione;
 Awoke welth, and welk in thys regione,
 Rewnde abowte in towne and cite,
 And thonke them that brought it to thys conclusion;
 Reioyse Englund the concord and unite.

<sup>2</sup> Thomas Lord Clifford. He succeeded to his honours in 1422, and died in 1454.

At Poules in London, with grete renowne,
 On oure Lady day the pes was wrought ;
 The kyng, the quene, with lords many one,
 To worshyppe that virgine as they oght,
 Went a prosession, and sparyd right noght,
 In sight of alle the comonialte,
 In tokyn that love was in hert and thought ;
 Reioice Englund the concord and unite.

There was by twene them lovely countenaunce,
 Whyche was grete yoy to alle that there were,
 That long tyme hadd ben in variaunce,
 As frynds for ever they went yn fere,
 They went togedre, and made good chere ;
 O Fraunce and Bretayne, repent shall ye,
 For the bergeyne shalle ye bye fulle dere ;
 Reioice Englund the concord and unite.

Our sovereyn lord the kyng, God kepe alway,
 The quene and the bisshope of Canterbury<sup>1</sup>,
 And other that have labored to thys love day,
 God preserve them we pray hertly ;
 And Londone for they fulle diligently,
 Kept the pees in trobull and in adversite ;
 To brynge yn rest they labored ful treuly ;
 Reioice Englund the peas and unite.

Off thre things, y preys thys worshypfull Citee :
 The ferst, of trewe feythe that they owe to the kyng ;
 The secounde, of love of eache comonialte ;
 The thyrde, of good rule evermore kepyng ;
 The whyche God mayntene ever long durynge,
 And save the Maire and all the hole Citee,
 And that ys amys brynge to amending,
 That Englund may reioice the pees and unite.

IBID.

[From the Cottonian MS. Vespasianus B. xvi.]

Whan Charite is chosen with states to stonde,
Stedfas and stille without distaunce,
Than wrathe may be exiled out of this londe,
And God oure gide to have the governaunce.

Wisdom and wellthe with alle plesaunce,
May rightful regne and prosperite,
For love hath underlaide wrathful veniaunce;
Reioise Anglond oure lordes acorded to be.

Reiose and thanke God, for evermore;
For now shal encrese thi consolacion,
Oure enemyes quaken and dreden fulsore,
That peas is made ther was division,

Whiche to them is a gret confusion,
And to us ioy and felicite;
God hold them longe in every season:
That Anglond may reioise concord and unite.

Now is sorowe with shame fled in to Fraunce,
As a felon that hath forsworn this londe;
Love hath put out malicious governaunce,
In every place bothe fre and bonde;

In Yorke, in Somerset as I understonde,
In Warrewik also is love and charite,
In Sarisbury eke, and in Northumbrelande;
That every man may reioise concord and unite.

Egremown, and Clifford, with other forsaide,
Ben set in the same opynyon;
In every quarter love is thus laide,
Grace and wisdom hath thus the dominacion:

Awake Welthe, and walke in this region,
Rounde aboute in toun and cite,
And thanke them that brought hit to this concluson;
Reioise Anglond to concorde and unite.

At Poules in Londone, with gret renoun,
On oure Ladi day in Lente this peas was wrought ;
The kinge, the quene, with lordes many oone,
To worship that virgine as thei ought,

Wenten a procession, and spariden right nought,
In sighte of alle the comynalte,
In token that love was in herte and thought ;
Reiose Anglond in concorde and unite.

Ther was bytwyn them lovely contynaunce,
Whiche was gret ioy to alle that ther were,
That long tyme hadden be in variaunce ;
As frendes for ever that had be in fere,

Thei wenten togeder, and made goud chere ;
France and Britayn repente shul thei,
For the bargayn shul thei abyde ful dere ;
Reiose Anglond in concorde and unite.

Oure soveraigne lord kyng God kepe alwey,
The quene, and the archbisshope of Canterbury,
And the bisshop of Wynchestre chancellor of Anglond,
And other that han labured to this love day.

God preserve them we pray hertly,
And London for thei ful diligently,
Kepten the peas in trowbel and adversite,
To bryng in reste thei labured ful truly ;
Reioise Anglond in concorde and unite.

Of thre thynges I praise the worshipful Cite ;
The first, the true faithe that thei have to the kyng ;
The seconde, of love to the comynalte ;
The thrid, goud rule for evermore keepynge ;

The whiche God maynteyn evermore durynge,
And save the Maier and alle the worthi Cite ;
And that is amys God brynge to amendinge,
That Anglond may reioise to concord and unite.

Neither of the ensuing articles, the whole of which are the production of the indefatigable Lydgate, can possibly be assigned to its proper date; and they are therefore arranged in the following order.

1. A Balade sent by a Poursyant to the Shirreves of London, accompanied with their Bretherne upon Mayes Daye, at Bussshopes Wod, at an honorable Dynere, each of them bringginge his Dysshe.

This Ballad, which occurs in Ashmole's Collection of Manuscripts, is introduced from its having been addressed to the Sheriffs of London; but it contains little that is worthy of attention.

2. London Lick-penny.

Of the numerous Ballads composed by 'The Monk of Bury,' this is perhaps the most curious and the best known; and, from its presenting a great deal of information relative to the Metropolis in the fifteenth century, it is of considerable interest. Two copies exist in MS. in the British Museum; one in the Harleian MS. 367. which is printed in Noorthouck's and Dr. Pugh's History of London, as well as in several other works; the other, in Stow's hand-writing, in the Harleian MS. 542: and as they differ very materially from each other, a copy of each is inserted. To this Ballad, it has been thought right to add another, by the same writer, which has never been before printed, on a very similar subject; namely,

3. Upon the Emptiness of his Purse,—

In which he treats this, perhaps the greatest of all human misfortunes, since it prevents the alleviation of almost all others, with singular address. The subject seems to have been a favourite one with our early poets; for there is a Ballad with nearly the same title by Chaucer; and another is printed in 'The Boke of St. Albans.'

4. On Forked Head Dresses.

The head-dresses of females in the reign of Henry the Sixth closely resembled the cauchoises still worn by those of Normandy; and which excited the displeasure of Dan John in so great a degree as to have induced him to invoke the aid of his Muse in effecting their abolition. It seems no subject escaped that eternal scribbler's attention; and if his abilities had equalled his disposition, he would probably have become the Juvenal of his age. Upon this occasion, however, he appears to have soared on rather a higher wing than usual; and the moral of his lay is the truism which has since been so beautifully expressed, that loveliness

"Is when unadorn'd, adorn'd the most."

5. On Fraudulent Millers and Bakers.

This short Ballad would appear, from the following passage in Fabian's Chronicle, to have been written in the 15th of Edw. IV. A° 1475, if it were not, that though the date of Lydgate's death has never been precisely ascertained, yet it is scarcely possible he could have lived to that year.

"This yere this mayer [Robert Bassett] dyd sharpe correccion upon bakers, for makynge of lyght brede; in so moche thatt he sett dyverse upon the pillory," &c.

A similar circumstance might however have occurred some years before, notwithstanding that it is not noticed by the writers of the period.

Mighty Flourra, goddes of freshe floures,
 Whiche clothed hast the soyle in lousty grene;
 Made buddes springe with his swete showres,
 By influence of the sonnes so sheene,
 To do plesaunce of entent ful clene,
 Unto the states whiche that now sitte here;
 Hath veere doune sent hir owen doughter dere,
 Making the vertue that dured in the roote,
 Called of clerkes, the vertue vegytable,
 For to trascend moste holsome and moste sweete,
 Into the crope this saysoun so greable.
 The bawmy lykour is so comendable,
 That it rejoythe with the fresshe moysture,
 Man, beeste, and foole, and every creature,
 Whiche hathe repressed, swaged, and bore doune,
 The grevous constreinte of the frostes heere;
 And caused foolis for joye of this saysonne,

To cheese their mates, thane by natures loore,
 With al gladnesse their courage to restore,
 Sitting on bowes fresshly nowe to synge,
 Veere for to save at his home comynge ;

 Lordes to regne in their noble puissance ;
 The people obeye with feythful obeyssaunce ;
 Of alle estates there shal bee oone ymage ;
 And princes first shal occupye the hede ;
 And prudent juges to correcte outrages,
 Shal trespassours consteynen under drede,
 That innosentes in their lowlyhede,
 As truwe comunes may bee their socour,
 Truwly contune in their faithful labour ;

And by the grace of oure lorde Jhesu,
 That holly chirche may have parseveraunce,
 Bee faythfull founde in al pertinaunce,
 Mayre, provost, shirreff, eche in his substaunce,
 And aldremen, whiche have the governaunce
 Over the people, by vertue may abyde,
 That noone oppression bee done to the pourayle.
 Thus as the people of prudent pollycye,
 Prynces of the right shal governe ;
 The chirche preye ; the juges justefye ;
 And knighthode, manly, and prudently discerne,
 Til light of trouthe so clerely the lanterne,
 That rightewysnesse throughe this regyounge,
 Represse the darknesse of al extorcyounge.
 Thes be the tythinges wheeche that wee have brought :
 Troubles exylinge of wynters rude derknesse ;
 Wherefore rejoye yowe in hert, wille, and thought ;
 Somer shal folowe to yowe, of al gladnesse ;
 And sithen she is mynistre of lustynesse,
 Let her be welcome to yowe at hir comyng ;
 Sith she to yowe hathe brought so glad tythinge,
 The noble princesse of moste magnifisence,
 Qweene of al joye, of gladde suffisaunce,
 May I be nowe comen to youre hye excellence,
 Presenting yowe prosperous plesaunce,
 Of al welfare moste fouldsome haboundaunce ;
 As shee that hathe under hir demayne,
 Of floures fresshe, moste holsome, and sovereraine.

L'ENVOYE TO ALLE THE STATES PRESENT.

This Princesse hathe by favour of nature,
 Repared ageine that wynter hathe defade,
 And foolis loustely reviv * * * *
 Theire lusty notes, and theire ermenye glade ;
 And under braunches, under plesant shade,
 Rejoyssing theire with many swete odours,
 And Zepherus with many fresshe odours,

Copirted fayre, with motleye whyte and rede,
 All hilles, pleynes, and lusty bankes grene,
 And made hir bawme to fleete in every mede ;
 And fury Tytane shewe oute heer tresses sheene,
 And upon bussches, and hawthornes kene,
 The nightingale with plesant ermonye,
 Colde wynter stormes now she dothe defye.
 On Parnoso, the lusty Muses nyene,
 Citheera with hir sone now dwellis,
 This sayson singe, and their notes tuwyne,
 Of poetrye, besyde the cristal wellis,
 Calyope the dytes of hem tellis ;
 And Orpheus with hees stringes sharpe,
 Syngethe a roundell with his temperd herpe.
 Wherfore to alle estates here present,
 This plesant tyme, moste of lustynesse,
 May, is now comen to fore yowe of entent,
 To bringe yowe alle to joye and fressshnesse,
 Prosperitee, welfare, and al gladnesse ;
 And al that may youre hyennesse qweerne and please,
 In any parte or doone youre hertes eese.

LONDON LICPENYE.

[From the Copy in the Autograph of John Stow, in the Harleian MS. 542. f. 102.]

In London ther I was lent,
 I saw myselfe where trouthe shuld be ateynte ;
 Fast to Westminstar ward I went,
 To a man of lawe to make my complaynt ;
 I sayd for Maris love, that holy seynt,
 Have pity on the powre that would procede ;
 I would gyve sylvar, but my purs is faynt,
 For lacke of money I may not spede.

As I thurst thrughe out the thronge,
Among them all my hode was gonn ;
Netheles I let not longe,
To Kyngs benche tyll I come ;
Byfore a juge I knelyd anon,
I prayd hym for Gods sake he would take hede ;
Full rewfully to hym I gan make my mone,
For lacke of money I may not spede.

Benethe hym set clerks a great rowt,
Fast they writen by one assent ;
There stode up one and cryed round about,
Richard, Robert, and one of Kent :
I wist not wele what he ment,
He cried so thike there indede,
There were stronge theves shamed and shent,
But they that laked money mowght not spede.

Unto the Comon place y yowde thoo,
Where sat one with a sylker houde ;
I dyd hym reverence as me ought to do ;
I tolde hym my case as well as I coude,
And sayd all my goods by nowrd and by sowde,
I am defrawdȳd with great falshed ;
He would not geve me a momme of his mouthe,
For lake of money I may not spede.

Then I went me unto the Rollis,
Before the clerks of the Chauncerie ;
There were many qui tollis,
But I herd no man speke of me ;
Before them I knelyd upon my kne,
Shewyd them myne evedence, and they began to reade.
They seyde trewer thinge might there nevar be,
But for lacke of money I may not spede.

In Westminster hall I found one,
Went in a longe gown of ray ;
I crowched and kneled before them anone,
For Marys love of helpe I gan them pray ;
As he had be wrothe, he voyded away,
Bakward his hand he gan me byd,
I wot not what thow menest gan he say,
Ley downe sylvar, or here thow may not spede.

In all Westminster hall I could find never a one,
That for me would do, thowghe I shuld dye ;
Without the dores were Flemings grete woon ;
Upon me fast they gan to cry,
And sayd, Master, what will ye cepen or by ?
Fine felt hatts, spectacles for to rede ;
Of this gay gere a great cawse why,
For lake of money I might not spede.

Then to Westminster gate y went,
When the sone was at highe prime ;
Cokes to me, they toke good entent,
Called me nere, for to dyne,
And proferyd me good brede, ale, and wyne ;
A fayre clothe they began to sprede,
Rybbes of beffe bothe fat and fine ;
But for lacke of money I might not spede.

In to London I gan me hy ;
Of all the lond it beareth the prise,
Hot pescods, one gan cry,
Strabery rype, and chery in the ryse ;
One bad me come nere and by some spice,
Pepar, and saffron, they gan me bede,
Clove, grayns, and flowre of rise ;
For lacke of money I might not spede.

Then into Chepe I gan me drawne,
Where I sawe stond moche people ;
One bad me come nere, and by fine cloth of lawne,
Paris thred coton and umple ;
I seyde there upon I could no skyle,
I am not wont there to in dede,
One bad me by an hewre my hed to hele ;
For lake of money I might not spede.

Then went I forth by London stone,
Throught out all Canywife strete ;
Drapors to me they called anone,
Grete chepe of clothe they gan me hete ;
Then come there one, and cried hot shepes fete ;
Risshes faire and grene, another began to grede,
Bothe melwell and makarell I gan mete ;
But for lacke of money I myght not spede.

Then I hied me into Est Chepe ;
One cries ribes of befe, and many a pie ;
Pewtar potts they clatteryd or a heape ;
Ther was harpe, pipe, and sawtry ;
Ye by cokke, nay by cokke, some began to cry ;
Some sang of Jenken and Julian, to get themselves mede ;
Ful fayne I wold hadd of that mynstralsie,
But for lacke of money I coud not spede.

Into Cornhill anon I yede,
Where is moche stolne gere amonge ;
I saw wher henge myne owne hode,
That I had lost in Westminstar amonge the throng ;
Then I beheld it with lokes full longe,
I kenned it as well as I dyd my crede,
To be myne owne hode agayne ; me thought it wrong,
But for lacke of money I might not spede.

Then came the Taverner, and toke me by the sleve,
And seyde Ser, a pint of wyn would yow assay?
Syr, qwod I, it may not greve,
For a peny may do no more then it may :
I dranke a pint, and therefore gan pay ;
Sore a hungred away I yede,
For well London lykke peny for ones eye,
For lake of money I may not spede.

Then I hyed me to Byllingesgate,
And cried wagge wagge gow hens ;
I praye a barge man, for Gods sake,
That they would spare me myn expens ;
He sayde, ryse up, man, and get the hens,
What menist thou, I will do on the no almes dede,
Here scapeth no man byneth ij pens,
For lacke of money I myght not spede.

Then I conveyed me into Kent ;
For of the law would I medle no more,
By caus no man to me would take entent,
I dight me to the plowe even as I did before.
Thus save London that in Bethelme was bore,
And every trew man of law God graunt hymself med,
And they that be othar, God theyr state restore ;
For he that lacketh money with them he shall not spede.

LONDON LYCKPENY.

A BALLADE COMPYLED BY DAN JOHN LYDGATE MONKE OF BERY, ABOUT —— YERES AGOE, AND NOW NEWLY OVERSENE AND AMENDED.

[Harleian MSS. 367. f. 126, 127.]

To London once, my stepps I bent,
Where trouth in no wyse should be faynt :
To Westmynster ward I forthwith went,
To a man of law to make complaynt.
I sayd, for Mary's love that holy saynt,
Pity the poore that would proceede ;
But for lack of mony I cold not spede.

And as I thrust the prese amonge,
By froward chaunce my hood was gone ;
Yet for all that I stayd not longe,
Tyll at the kynge bench I was come.
Before the judge I kneled anon,
And prayd hym for Gods sake to take heede ;
But for lack of money I myght not spede.

Berith them sat clarkes a great rout,
Which fast dyd wryte by one assent ;
There stoode up one and cryed about,
Rychard, Robert, and John of Kent ;
I wyst not wele what this man ment :
He cryed so thicke there indede,
But he that lackt mony myght not spede.

Unto the common place I yode thoo,
Where sat one with a sylken hoo ;
I dyd hym reverence, for I ought to do so,
And told my case as well as I coud,
How my goods were defrauded me by falshood.
I gat not a mum of his mouth for my meed,
And for lack of mony I myght not spede.

Unto the Rolls I gat me from thence,
Before the clarkes of the chauncerye,
Where many I found earnyng of pence,
But none at all once regarded mee :
I gave them my playnt uppon my knee ;
They lyked it well when they had it reade,
But lackyng mony I could not be sped.

In Westmynster hall I found out one,
Which went in a long gown of raye ;
I crouched and kneled before hym anon :
For Maryes love, of help I hym praye.
I wot not what thou meanest, gan he say ;
To get me thence he dyd me bede,
For lack of mony I cold not speed.

Within this hall, neithere ryche nor yett poor,
Wold do for me ought, although I shold dye ;
Which seing, I gat me out of the doore,
Where Flemynge began on me for to cry,
Master, what will you copen or by,
Fyne felt hatts, or spectacles to reede ?
Lay down your sylver, and here you may spede.

Then to Westmynster gate I presently went,
When the sonn was at hyghe pryme ;
Cokes to me, they tooke good entent,
And profered me bread with ale and wyne,
Rybbs of befe both fat and ful fyne ;
A fayre cloth they gan for to sprede,
But wantyng mony I might not be speede.

Then unto London I dyd me hye,
Of all the land it beareth the pryse ;
Hot pescods one began to crye,
Straberry rype, and cherryes in the ryse :
One bad me come nere, and by some spyce,
Peper, and sayforne, they gan me bede ;
But for lacke of money I myght not spede.

Then to the Chepe I began me drawne,
Where mutch people I sawe for to stande ;
One ofred me velvet, sylke, and lawne,
An other he taketh me by the haunde,
Here is Parys thred, the fynest in the launde.
I never was used to such thyngs in dede,
And wanting mony I myght not spede.

Then went I forth by London stone,
Throughout all Canwyke streete ;
Drapers mutch cloth me offred anone :
Then comes me one, cryd hot shepes feete,
One cryde makerell, ryshes grene, another gan greete,
One bad me by a hood to cover my head ;
But fore want of mony I myght not be sped.

Then I hyed me into Estchepe ;
One cryes rybbs of befe, and many a pye ;
Pewter potts they clattered on a heape,
There was harpe, pype, and mynstrelsye ;
Yea by cock, nay by cock, some began crye,
Some songe of Jenken and Julyan for there mede ;
But for lack of mony I myght not spede.

Then into Cornhyll anon I yode,
Where was much stolen gere amonge ;
I saw where honge myne owne hoode,
That I had lost amonge the thronge ;
To by my own hood I thought it wronge,
I knew it well as I dyd my crede ;
But for lack of mony I could not spede.

The Taverner took mee by the sleve ;
Sir, sayth he, wyll you our wyne assay ?
I answerd, that can not mutch me greve,
A peny can do no more than it may :
I dranke a pynt, and for it dyd pay ;
Yet sore a hungerd from thence I yede,
And wantyng my mony I cold not spede.

Then hyed I me to Belyngsgate ;
 And one cryed hoo, go we hence ;
 I prayd a barge man for Gods sake,
 That he wold spare me my expence.
 Thou scapst not here, quod he, under ij pence,
 I lyst not yet bestow my almes dede :
 Thus lacking mony I could not speede.

Then I convayed me into Kent ;
 For of the law wold I meddle no more,
 Because no man to me tooke entent,
 I dyght me to do as I dyd before.
 Now Jesus that in Bethlem was bore,
 Save London, and send trew lawyers there mede,
 For who so wants mony with them shall not spede.

BY JOHN LYDGATE.

[Harleian MSS. 2255, f. 45<sup>b</sup>.]

RȲHT myhty prynce, and it be your wille,
 Condescende leiser for to take,
 To seen the content of this litil bille,
 Which whan I wrot, myn hand I felte quake ;
 Tokne of mornyng weryd clothys blake,
 Cause my purs was falle in gret rerage ;
 Lynyng outward, his guttys wer out shake,
 Oonly for lak of plate, and of coignage.

I souhte leechys for a restoratiff,
 In whom I fond no consolacione ;
 Appotecaryes for a confortatiff ;
 Dragge nor dya was noon in Bury tone,

Botme of his stomak was tournyd up so done ;
A laxatif did hym so gret outrage,
Made hym slendre by a consumpcione,
Oonly for lak of plate, and of coignage.

Ship was ther noon, nor seilis rede of hewe,
The wynd froward to make hem ther to londe ;
The flood was passyd, and sodeynly of newe,
A lowh ground ebbe was faste by the stronde ;
No maryneer durste take on honde,
To caste an ankir for streihtnesse of passage,
The custom skars, as fow may undirstonde,
Oonly for lak of plate, and of coignage.

Ther was no tokne sent done from the Tour,
As any gossomer the countirpeys was liht,
A fretyng etyk causyd his langour,
By a cotidian which heeld hym day and nyht :
Sol and Luna wer clypsyd of ther liht,
Ther was no cros nor preent of no visage,
His lynyng dirk, ther wer no platys briht,
Oonly for lak, and scarsete of coignage.

Harde to likke hony out of a marbil stoon,
For ther is nouthir licour nor moisture ;
An earnest grote, whan it is dronke and goon,
Bargeyn of marchauntys stant in aventure.
My purs and I be callyd to the lure
Off indigence, our stuff leyd in morgage ;
But ye, my lord, may al our soor recure,
With a receyt of plate, and of coignage.

Nat sugre plate maad by thappotecarye,
Plate of briht metal yevith a mery sone,
In Boklerys bury is noon such letuary ;
Gold is a cordial, gladdest confeccione,

Ageyn etiques of oold consumpcione,
 Auru' potable, for folk ferre ronne in age,
 In quynt essence best restauracione,
 With silver plate, enprentyd with coignage.

O seely bille ! why art thu nat ashamyd,
 So malapertly to shewe out thy constreynt ;
 But povert hath so nyh thy tonne attamyd,
 That nichil habet is cause of thy compleynt.
 A drye tisyk makith oold men ful feynt ;
 Reediest weye to renewe ther corage,
 Is a fresshe dragge of no spycis meynt,
 But of a briht plate, enpreentyd with coignage.

Thu mayst afferme, as for thyn excus,
 Thy bareyn soyl is .sool and solitarye ;
 Of cros nor pyl ther is no reclus,
 Preent nor impressione in al thy seyntuarye.
 To conclude breefly, and nat tarye,
 Ther is no noyse herd in thyn hermytage ;
 God sende soone a gladdere letuarye,
 With a cleer sone of plate, and of coignage.

ON FORKED HEAD DRESSES :

BY JOHN LYDGATE.

[Harleian MSS. 2255. f. 6.]

Off God and kynde procedith al bewte :
 Crafft may shewe a foreyn apparence,

But nature ay must have the sovereynte :
Thyng countirfet hath noon existence,
Twen gold and gossomer is gret difference ;
Trewe metal requerith noon allay,
Unto purpoos by cleer experyence ;
Bewte wyl shewe, thouth hornes wer away.

Riche attires of gold, and perre,
Charbonclis, rubies of moost excellence,
Shewe in dirknesse, liht wher so they be,
By ther natural hevenly influence.
Doubletys of glas yeve a gret evidence ;
Thyng contirfet wil faylen at assay :
On this mateer concludyng in sentence,
Bewte wyl shewe, thouth hornys wer away.

Aleyn remembryth his compleynt, who lyst see
In his book of famous eloquence ;
Clad al in floures and blosmys of a tree,
He sawh Nature in hir moost excellence,
Upon hir hed a keverchef of Valence,
Noon othir richesse of countirfet array ;
T'exemplefye by kyndly providence,
Bewte wil shewe, thouth hornys wer away.

Famous poetys of antiquyte,
In Grece and Troye, renoumyd of prudence,
Wroot of queen Helene, and Penelope,
Off Polyceene with hir chaast innocence :
For wyves trewe calle Lucrece to presence,
That they wer fayr, ther can no man sey nay ;
Kynde wrouht hem with so gret dilligence,
Ther bewte couthe, hornys wer cast away.

Clerkys recorde by gret auctorite,
Hornys wer yove to beestys for diffence ;

A thyng contrary to femynyte,
 To be maad sturdy of resistance :
 But arche wyves egre in ther violence,
 Fers as tygre for to make affray,
 They have despyt ageyn conscience,
 Lyst nat of pryde, ther hornys cast away.

L'ENVOYE.

Noble Pryncessys, this litel shoort ditee,
 Rewdly compiled, lat it be noon offence,
 To your womanly merciful pitee,
 Thouh it be rad in your audience :
 Peysed ech thyng in your iust advertence,
 So it be no displesaunce to your pay,
 Undir support of your pacience,
 Yevyth example, hornys to cast away.

Grettest of vertues is humylite,
 As Salomon seith, sone of sapience,
 Moost was accepted to the Deite.
 Takith heed heer of yeuyth, to this woord credence,
 How Maria, whiche hadde a premynence
 Above alle women, in Bedleem whan she lay,
 At Cristes birthe no cloth of gret dispence,
 She weryd a keverche, hornys wer cast away.

Off birthe she was hihest of degre,
 To whom alle aungelis did obedience ;
 Of David is lyne which sprang out of Jesse,
 In whom alle vertues by iust convenience,
 Maad stable in God, by goostly confidence :
 This roose of Jerycho, ther greuh noon suych in May,
 Poore in spirit, parficht in pacience,
 In whoom alle hornys of pryde wer put away.

Moodir of J'hu, myrour of chastite,
 In woord nor thouht that nevir did offence,
 Trewe exemplaire of virginite,
 Heedspryng and welle of parfit contynence,
 Was nevir clerk, by rethoryk nor science
 Kowde alle hir vertues reherse to this day ;
 Noble Pryncessys of meeke benyvolen~~ce~~,
 B'example of hir, your hornys cast away.

[Harleian MSS. 2255.]

Put out his hed lyst nat for to dare,
 But lyk a man upon that tour to abyde,
 For cast of eggys wil not conys spare,
 Tyl he be quaylled body, bak, and syde ;
 His heed endooryd, and of verray pryde,
 Put out his armys, shewith abroad his face,
 The fenestrallys be made for hym so wyde,
 Cleymyth to been a capteyn of that place.

The bastyle longith of verray dewe ryght,
 To fals bakerys it is trewe herytage ;
 Severelle to them, this knoweth every wight,
 Be kynde assyngned for ther sittynge stage,
 Wheer they may freely shewe out ther visage,
 Whan they take oonys there possessione,
 Owthir in youthe or in myddyl age,
 Men doon hem wrong yif they take hym done.

Let mellerys and bakerys gadre hem a gilde,
And alle of assent make a fraternite ;
Undir the pillory a litil chapell bylde,
The place amorteyse and purchase liberte,
For alle thoo that of ther noumbre be ;
Whatevir it coost afftir that they wende,
They may cleyne be just auctorite,
Upon that bastile to make an ende.
